A Vanished Bugaboo. Some Real Calvinists. Jailers and Criminals. Poor Burns, He Drank.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928)

DREAD of big business fades. Raskob, financial head of the four billion dollar General Motors company, is Democratic national chairman. Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of the General Electric Company, one of the biggest corporations in America, is asked to run for governor by Democrats in New York.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, where he dwells in bliss, doubtless shudders at all this. But these are practical days, big business is practical and it is well to recognize things as they are.

SOME Calvinists, it seems, are still Calvinists like old John, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland will not attend the Olympic games. Calvinists in Holland are urged to stay away from what stern preachers call "a carnival of the flesh."

DUTCH Calvinists say the Olympic games turn men away from Golgotha to Greco-Roman paganism.

A majority of human beings have abandoned the John Calvin theory, which included the burning alive of Dr. Servetus on slight provocation, believing that the good Lord wants people to enjoy themselves occasionally.

CRIME organization seems to reach almost everywhere. On Saturday night two dangerous mankilling gunmen escaped from Sing Sing prison.

The next morning two Sing Sing prison guards were arrested, accused of blackmailing motorists on the highway.

No wonder prisoners escape, when the jailers by night are highway blackmailers by day. A fine example to the prisoners, in "reforming" prison atmosphere.

THE Rev. Dr. Wylie, chaplain of Robert Burns Memorial Association, regrets that Burns drank so much. It is too bad, but it is not certain that he would have written the same poetry on an icewater diet

Mr. Wylie might regret even more that Burns moved to Edinburgh and went into high society. After that he wrote trash. Society hurt him more than alcohol.

STRANGELY enough, good writing and alcohol have gone together. Beaumont and Fletcher, Shakespeare, Dr. Johnson, Coleridge, practically all the great ones, drank. As for Latin writers, Dante, Cervantes, etc., and old Greeks and Romans, they would have thought water plain poison.

JERITZA will talk and sing in a "talking movie." "The talkies" make a good start with this artist. The singer will get $10,000 a week or more. And while she rests the film will go on singing, millions hearing it. Wonderful invention, time and labor saving.

RUSSIAN scientists, newspapers and poets continue bitter attacks on the Italian North Pole aviators because of the alleged abandonment of the scientist, Malmgren, put in an ice grave, left to die.

A Russian poet writes about "the Fascist general who took the cross to the pole, but deserted his comrades."

NOBILE'S experience shows that the dirigible is not the airship for polar flights. Ice on the "Italia's" bag forced the ship down head first. Who will find a way to prevent ice formation on flying machines?

THE world improves.

A British baronet, Sir John Buchanan, and 15 others were fined $50 for organizing a cock fight. That pastime, once a royal sport in England, was made illegal and England takes her laws seriously. For example, if you commit a murder over there they hang you.

The Baronet had arranged a fine red carpet for the cock fight and it was private. That made no difference.

KING GEORGE greets 120 delegates to the British Empire conference for the study of cancer. Unfortunately, the long awaited cure is not to be disclosed. Doctors can only recommend early treatment of a disease that baffles science. Whoever neglects an unusual growth, however small, risks his life.

ON SEPTEMBER 1 the Dawes plan to make Germany pay all the traffic will bear starts in full force. Each year from now on Germany must pay, as penalty for the big war, more than $600,000,000 in gold.

Experts say "Germany can pay." But how long CAN she and WILL she pay? Where will she get all that gold every year?

DR. IRA S. WILE says the population is "growing older." It lives longer, the birth rate is lower. But old people, he says, are no longer proud of their age and little reverence is paid it. Today the number of those past 60 is 50 per cent greater than in 1870.

Age is nothing to be proud of, since we grow old in spite of ourselves. But to be hard at work when you are old, and EFFICIENTLY at work, is something.

BRIDGE FALLS WITH SCORE

TRUCKS DROP THROUGH SPAN

A score or more county road workers were believed injured when the Cow Hollow Bridge over which they were passing late today in three trucks and a steam shovel on the Mayview branch of the Washington Pike collapsed.

The trucks and the shovel plunged through to the hollow when the floor of the bridge folded. One worker, believed the most seriously hurt, was rushed to the nearby City Hospital at Mayview.

LANDSLIDES

Heavy rains of the past several weeks have resulted in a cave-in and landslide on the Library-Castle Shannon road beyond Castle Shannon. Here is the earth that slid out on the roadbed, now closed for about two weeks for State Highway Department repairs.

WASHED OUT

The water caused most of its damage blow the surface, washing out earth beneath the road's foundation. At this point the road caved in, leaving this hole about 15 feet deep. Culverts are to be constructed here.

M'GOVERN CHARGES VOIDED

County Controller Robert G. Woodside today ordered stricken from county records, surcharges amounting to $128,503.56 against County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock and former County Commissioner James Houlahen. In three opinions, Controller Woodside asserted that the surcharges were unwarranted, improper and illegal.

The surcharges were filed against Commissioners Armstrong and Babcock and former Commissioner Houlahen by former County Controller Charles C. McGovern, following the close of McGovern's public probe of the fiscal affairs of the county. McGovern charged that the county performed work for individuals, using county equipment and materials. He also charged that most of alleged private improvements was done by county employes, whose salaries were paid by the county.

WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE

In ordering the surcharges wiped off the books, Controller Woodside said that if such work was done by county employes, it was carried on without orders from or the knowledge of any of the said elective officers of the county.

Controller Woodside, in his opinions, contended that if the surcharges filed against the two Commissioners and Houlahen were legal, the surcharges should have been charged against County Treasurer Samuel D. Foster and former Controller McGovern, in addition. "I am of the opinion, under all of the facts and the law relative thereto, that if any surcharge be made it should be made against all of the five county officials," the controller's opinion read.

The surcharges were grouped into three items. The largest item was the Narrows Run road improvement at a cost of $85,063.11. The Eighth Avenue Extension improvement, Homestead, was next at $32,790.45, and the other item, including improvement of property of St. Casimir's Catholic Cemetery.

Pirates Aim at Eighth

Confident that their play during the last half of the race will be a big improvement over what they were able to accomplish in the first half, the Pirates were not far removed from a "money position" of the National League today as they made ready to take on the Braves in the third game of the series.

Winning their seventh straight victory yesterday, the Freebooters can reach the .500 mark this afternoon by annexing one more contest. Before the present drive got under way, the morale of the club was low, but there is an altogether different tone in their camp these days.

Carmen Hill is due to face the Braves this afternoon at Forbes Field. Manager Hornsby is expected to call on Virgil Barnes.

Donora Smiths 12 to 4 Against Al Smith

DONORA, Pa., July 17.—The Donora branch of the Smith family is against Al Smith for President. A poll of the 11 Smith families revealed that 12 persons in these families will vote for Hoover and only four for the New York governor.

PICNICKERS FAVOR SMITH

The Magyars, in picnic, assembled at Kennywood Park yesterday, came out enthusiastically for "Al" Smith, 131 voting in The Sun-Telegraph straw ballot for the Democratic candidate and only 31 for Hoover during the day. It was Hungarian Day at the picnic grounds, and although the vote was not heavy, it was characteristic and showed the trend of sentiment of this group of voters.

The voting machine will remain at Kennywood Park during the week, where several picnics are scheduled. Today the Mt. Oliver and Knoxville Business Men's Associations are having their annual outing and the vote is expected to show the choice of presidential candidate in these communities. Tomorrow the Charleroi Chamber of Commerce picnic will be held and the voting machine will register the preference of that district.

WEBSTER HALL FOR HOOVER

The Schenley Park golf clubhouse vote was an overwhelming one for Smith, as the table below shows, although Webster Hall brought in a margin of votes in favor of Hoover, the only machine in the straw vote campaign in Pittsburgh to favor the Rpublican candidate.

After a few days of lagging, the vote again went well over the 1,000 mark yesterday, the totals running 1,219. The total vote to date assumed large proportions, showing

Wash.-Hgts. Gate Opens

Twenty years ago far-seeing persons suggested that there be a Mt. Washington roadway. Today that roadway was ready to receive long lanes of traffic, and citizens of Mt. Washington and Duquesne Heights and the city in general were celebrating.

The roadway, a $1,800,000 outlay, paid by the city taxpayers, was to be opened at 4 p. m. with a parade. Tonight there is to be a banquet in Maennerchor Hall.

The new boulevard as it stands today cost $1,000,000. The completion of the project at the eastern end to connect with Carson street at South Seventh street will require an additional $800,000.

DANGER SCENTED

A dangerous traffic situation became apparent today at the intersection of the new roadway and the north entrance of Liberty tubes. In order to eliminate automobile accidents a lighting system, warning motorists coming out of the tubes and down the roadway, will be installed. County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong and Burton W. Marsh, city traffic engineer, inspected the new roadway today.

A traffic signal illuminated at night is suggested. The danger signal will be erected on the roadway, about 100 feet from the approach to the entrance of the tubes.

Commissioner Armstrong said a similar signal would be erected overhead on Liberty Bridge and at the Forbes street entrance of Armstrong tunnels. In addition, a safety zone will be installed at the Forbes street entrance to the tubes.

Work on installing a new lighting system in Liberty tubes was started today. The present lights are not powerful enough to properly light the tubes. Electric red lights, 25 feet apart, also will be installed along the curbs.

This new boulevard receives four lanes of traffic, is 22 feet wide and more than 5,000 feet long. An eight-foot sidewalk on the north side offers further opportunities to pedestrians for the perfect view of Pittsburgh afforded by elevation 500 feet above the downtown section.

The boulevard runs from the Liberty Bridge and the mouth of the Liberty tubes to Grandview avenue and Merrimac street, where, this afternoon the roadway will be officially declared open. The relief from traffic congestion it is expected to offer will be enjoyed by the city and county in general and in particular by the residents of Mt. Washington, the South Hills, Carnegie, Crafton and Greentree Borough.

The construction was first suggested more than 20 years ago by Charles E. MacPherson, now retired, who was then a member of the Central Board of Education, and Edward Schultz, brother-in-law of the late E. M. Bigelow. Since 1919, Councilman P. J. McArdle has worked for it. Ground was broken in 1925 and there were two delays—one when citizens asked for an injunction, complaining that it affected their properties; again, when fire razed the framework of the span that tops the Castle Shannon incline plane.

The Washington Heights Board of Trade is in charge of the celebration. H. M. Keefer is to be chief marshal of the parade; Samuel Reno, chairman, and Clark Rollins and Henry Fox, vice chairmen. At the banquet the listed speakers are Mayor Kline, Councilman McArdle, Alderman Patrick Cawley, Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang, Henry Fox, John G. Reis.

LEGLESS AVIATOR HOPS FOR GETTYSBURG TODAY

GREENSBURG, Pa., July 17.—With a new propeller on his plane, M. R. (Dinger) Daugherty, legless, one-armed flier of New Martinsville, W. Va., expects to hop off today for Gettysburg. Daugherty, at Hill Airport since last week, hopes to be the first to fly from New York to Rome.

CUT IN CAR SERVICE SHOWN

Following closely on complaints to City Council of inadequate car service on many lines and regarding the operation of one-man cars, Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, today submitted figures which show fewer street cars are being operated this year than last and that street car service in car miles showed a decrease of 3.91 per cent this year over the same period last year. He said this was due to falling off in the earning of 3.97 per cent.

For 194 days this year, the decrease in car miles was 875,357, his figures showed, while during the rush hours of the day, 4 to 6, there were 53 less cars operated. During the slack period, around noon, there were 11 less operated. The number of one-man cars averages 230, the same as last year, it was declared.

Following complaints, Council yesterday ordered an investigation of trolley service by the Traction Conference Board, which is composed of Chairman Charles A. Finley, a railways representative, W. H. Boyce; a city representative, W. Edgar Reed, and a representative of the suburban municipalities, David L. Starr.

Car mileage has decreased only in proportion to the earnings, Fitzgerald declared, defending the slash in service. He claims improved efficiency in operation to offset the reduced service which followed the change of management from the receivership.

BRITISH 'HICKS,' HARRY SAYS

International News Service.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Harry K. Thaw, who favored England with a visit only to be told the British shore line from a ship was the best the King could do for him, is back in New York with a peeve on at King George and his clerks.

"England is hundreds of years behind the times," was the theme of a statement issued in typewritten form by Thaw as he stepped from the Ile de France today. Later he amended the statement to make it read "a million years."

Barred as an undesirable, according to messages from abroad, because of the Stanford White tragedy and subsequent happenings in his life, Thaw left the British shores and went to France where he was granted ingress without quibbling.

"I have been treated with the greatest courtesy in France, Austria and Germany," the statement explains, "but in England they decided against me. They have never been able to overcome their personal feelings. They are a lot of hicks."

Thaw also announced that he wrote to the British home secretary, only to have his favor ignored.

"I don't know what was in their minds," the statement explained. "The English people are not a free people. The same conditions exist in England today as existed in the time of Cromwell. I had influence brought to bear from the United States to find out why they barred me, but I have received no response."

Thaw talked incoherently and discussed a wide range of subjects with the reporters who met him aboard the Ile de France. He said he won $1,500 in a ship pool on the way back, that he had issued a long statement in France, but that the papers had ignored it, that he wanted to see his mother in Pittsburgh and that people were always giving him a "dirty deal."

Great Britain barred Thaw as undesirable because of his connection with the White murder.

"I wasn't convicted of that. No sane person would convict me," he said. "I know a lot of things about the British but I won't say anything when I'm not in that country."

Mt. Washington Road Opening Program

Following is the program for the opening of the Mt. Washington roadway:

Parade, starting at 4 o'clock, from Mt. Washington, traversing a section of the downtown district, and returning to hilltop by way of Liberty Bridge and new roadway.

Dedicatory exercises at Merrimac street and Grandview avenue.

Banquet in Maennerchor hall, with city officials and Hill Top residents as speakers.

The new roadway terminus is 500 feet above the "Golden Triangle," and cost $1,800,000.

ABOARD THE STEAMSHIP EMPRESS OF RUSSIA, July 17.—We are making steady progress toward the start of the last leg of our race with the Moon. Both I and my companion in this adventure, Charles B. D. Collyer, are confident we will arrive in New York on our schedule, that is on July 22.

Our steamer, now four days out of Yokohama, is due in Vancouver on the 20th. From there we go to Seattle, and then will begin the last leg by air across the American continent to our starting point.

Our boat will average close to 500 knots a day. Yesterday we reeled off 447 knots. By a strange coincidence, we crossed the Atlantic with Morris Gest. Now we find his partner, Ray Comstock, on this boat.

We have films of our arrival and departure from Japan aboard to be sent to New York by air mail. There is much betting aboard as to whether the films beat us in. Comstock is backing us to win.

The Empress of Russia this evening was within 2,000 miles of Vancouver, British Columbia. Thus the voyagers are within approxmately 5,000 miles of their goal. They have traveled nearly around the world, and if all goes well will complete their journey on the twenty-third day, breaking all records.

[John Henry Mears and Charles B. D. Collyer are now steaming eastward across the Pacific on their attempt to establish a new world record by girdling the globe in less than 28 days. They will continue to send the story of their attempt, by radio, exclusively to The Sun-Telegraph in Pittsburgh.]

Increase Steel Price

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

Expectation of increasing activity in the steel business in the latter part of this year was indicated by the Carnegie Steel Company, principal subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation here, which has announced an advance of $2 a ton in the prices of bars, plates and shapes for fourth-quarter delivery. This makes the minimum price $2 a hundred pounds f. o. b. Pittsburgh.

Six weeks ago an advance of $1 a ton was announced, bringing the price to $1.90. This quotation has not become effective on tonnage actually being shipped, but resulted in a rush on the part of consumers to place orders at the old quotations.

The last advance returns prices to the level prevailing early in 1927, before continued price-cutting carried quotations down $5 a ton. After reaching their low point last October the price trend has been steadily upward.

The independent steel producers are expected to follow Carnegie Steel in making the advance.

Further evidence of improvement in the steel business can be seen in the increasing operations by steel producers here and in the Youngstown district. The output of both finishing mills and blast furnaces is being expanded.

The No. 5 blast furnace in the Eliza group of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation was blown in yesterday and is making iron today. This makes a total of 10 J. & L. blast furnaces in operation, five at their Eliza and five at their Aliquippa works.

The addition of the Eliza stack will give employment to several hundred men, not only at the furnace but in the steel works as well. Jones & Laughlin report that the additional furnace was required to take care of the increasing business that has been coming in during the last few weeks and which gives indications of keeping up throughout the summer and of increasing during the fall and winter.

EXPLODES IN CROWD MIDST

Italian residents of Swissvale, Braddock and Rankin with hundreds of guests were gathered along the hillside in Miller street, near the Rankin Bridge, last night watching a fireworks display in honor of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel when a bomb, failing to burst in the air, dropped into the crowd of 3,000 and exploded. The number of injured was estimated from 12 to 25, several of them women and children. Some are expected to lose their sight.

Today Chief of County Detectives George W. Murren assigned two sleuths to the task of investigating the explosion.

Flames and powder pellets scattered through a section of the crowd and pandemonium prevailed until uninjured spectators and rescue workers from hospitals carried those who were hurt to homes and physicians' offices. At the Braddock General Hospital today only one patient remained, and his condition was not critical.

SHOE BLOWN OFF

Mrs. Mary Jeremias, of Swissvale, and her son, Joseph, 11, were most seriously injured. A shoe and some flesh were torn from the mother's left foot and the boy's legs and arms were riddled. Burned severely in the face, and in danger of losing their sight, are Joseph Ameryaschyok, Bessemer Terrace, and Andrew Yunic, North Braddock.

Others painfully injured included George Files, 15, Swissvale, in Braddock General Hospital; Walter Kitsinger, Hays Borough; Katherine Kitsinger, 10; Leo Truschel, 6556 Rowan avenue, East End.

ALEXANDER S. GUFFEY, EX-POSTMASTER, DIES

Alexander S. Guffey, a local Democratic leader and former postmaster of Pittsburgh, died last night in his home at 703 St. James street, East End. Mr. Guffey served as postmaster during the Wilson administration.

He also was the Democratic nominee in the Thirty-fifth Congressional District and was considered an authority on Western Pennsylvania history. He made his home with his brother, Joseph F. Guffey, who headed the Pennsylvania delegation at the national convention at Houston recently.

For many years Mr. Guffey was a resident of Westmoreland county, where he was born and reared.

Mr. Guffey was a lifelong friend of the late President Wilson, having met the President after his graduation at Princeton. He was an active supporter of Wilson. President Wilson appointed Guffey postmaster here in July, 1916. He held the office until 1921. He succeeded Dr. George W. McNeil.

As an authority on Western Pennsylvania history, Mr. Guffey had written numerous books. He also wrote a series of articles on the early history of this district and of the "Whisky Rebellion," which were published in local newspapers. At the time of his death he was working on articles concerning the "Whisky Insurrection" and the "Edward Cook Family." His library on state history probably was the most complete in the commonwealth.

He was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian Church, a member of the University and Pittsburgh clubs. He leaves his brother, Joseph F. Guffey, and three sister, Ida V. Guffey, Pauletta Guffey and Mrs. Carroll Z. Miller. Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the Samson funeral parlors. Interment will be private in Westmoreland county.

N. Y. BIDS FAREWELL TO GOOD WILL MARTYR

NEW YORK, July 17.—Lines of silent men and women gathered on the sidewalk early today in front of the Broadway funeral parlor where the body of Capt. Emilio Carranza lay in state, waiting to file past the casket of Mexico's most daring youth and martyr to the cause of good will among nations.

More details have been completed for the young flier's funeral procession to his native land, which will start from the Pennsylvania station Wednesday afternoon. Brig. Gen. Otho Rosenbloom, of Fort Hamilton, will be the grand marshal of the procession to the station.

The funeral train will consist of an engine, a dining car and three sleeping cars and an observation car. It will probably leave the station at about 5:30 in the afternoon, the procession being scheduled to leave the funeral church at 3 o'clock.

Four commissioned officers and 16 non-commissioned men will be on the train, Maj. Gen. Hanson E. Ely announced today. The non-commissioned men will leave the train at the border; the officers will go to Mexico City for the funeral there.

A guard of honor, headed by W. Manuel Cruz, of the Mexican embassy at Washington, was at the bier today, and received the many floral pieces and messages of condolence that poured in. The dead flier's father, Sebastian Carranza, will accompany the body on the funeral train, it was announced.

PADLOCK IS ORDERED

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today handed down a temporary padlock injunction against a saloon at 121 East Eighth avenue, Homestead. The proprietor of the saloon was named as John Schragel and the owner of the property as Emma A. Queck.

How Strong Is Al Smith In Western Pennsylvania?

TO answer this question, that is heard everywhere in Pittsburgh today, the Sun-Telegraph prints a ballot below.

These ballots will not appear every day, but occasionally, and on those days no extra papers will be delivered to any agent nor will papers be sold in bulk to any individual or organization. Ballots received in bulk will not be counted. No more than three in one envelope. Thus a fairly accurate estimate of the relative strength of Hoover and Smith may be determined.

In the Homestead and Narrows Run projects, Controller Woodside pointed out that his review of the charges showed that "there was no loss sustained by the county of Allegheny as a result of the contracts entered into for this work."

The Eighth avenue and Narrows Run improvements were projects in which the county participated in by agreements with the municipalities sharing in the cost of the work.

"The action of Controller Woodside is just as I anticipated," County Commissioner McGovern said. "The Controller is carrying out his political promises, and what can you expect when his office is politically owned."

Commissioner McGovern said that he is not through with the matter yet.

CEREMONIES SET FOR LATE AFTERNOON

Impressive ceremonies will mark the opening late today of the Mt. Washington roadway, forming a new short-cut from the downtown section, by way of Liberty Bridge, to Mt. Washington and Duquesne Heights. An automobile parade will form on Mt. Washington at 4 o'clock, cover a portion of the downtown section and return to Grandview avenue, where the formal dedicatory exercises will be held. Loving cups will be presented to those having the best decorated floats and a banquet will follow. Speakers will include Mayor Charles H. Kline, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Councilman P. J. McArdle, long a booster for the roadway; President of Council James F. Malone, John G. Reis, Mt. Washington Business Men's Association, and Henry G. Fox, president, Washington Heights Board of Trade. Alderman Patrick Cawley is chairman of the speakers' committee. This excellent photograph shows the new road as it comes down from the hill to meet Liberty Bridge. To the right is the "Golden Triangle," to the left the tunnels to the South Hills. MOSCOW, July 17.—The Soviet ice-breaker Krassin today continued its search of the region north of Foyne Island where the gas bag of the ill-fated dirigible Italia is believed to have come down with the six still-missing members of the airship's crew.

The continued search is buoyed by the hope that the six men may still be alive, encamped somewhere in the Arctic wastes. It is also hoped that the missing rescue expedition of six men led by Capt. Roald Amundsen, noted Arctic explorer, may be located in the same vicinity.

The Krassin yesterday rescued the Russian aviator Chuchnovsky and his four companions from an ice floe near Cape Platte, North East Land, where their plane had been forced down after sighting Capt. Mariano and Capt. Zappi of the Italia crew.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 17.—Gov. Al Smith today was seriously considering whether he should have his notification before or after that of Herbert Hoover, his Republican presidential opponent.

Some of the Governor's closest friends have advised him to have the notification date fixed August 4, a week ahead of the Republican ceremony. They would like to see Smith present his views on national issues to the country ahead of Hoover, and they have bluntly told the Governor that this would be good politics and would place him on the offensive in the campaign.

While his mind is still open on the subject and he is securing the views of all of his advisers, the Governor is said to be inclined at present to postpone his notification until about a week after the Republican meeting.

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"I get as much 'kick' out of my trips to Pittsburgh in all things that smack of the social, civic and economic as I do in Little Old New York." —WILLIAM R. GEORGE.

WILLIAM R. GEORGE

WILLIAM R. (Daddy) GEORGE, founder of the George Junior Republic, born in West Dryden, N. Y., June 4, 1866. Common school education, and moved to New York in 1880, where he entered business. Interested in boys and girls of the poorer classes he instituted reforms which led to founding of the "Junior Republic" in the interest of delinquents. Lives in Freeville, N. Y.

Although my environment is "The Sidewalks of New York" for a large portion of my time, I am not of the number of New Yorkers who believe the metropolis to be the only city in the Universe, for to speak frankly, I get as much "kick" out of my trips to Pittsburgh in all things that smack of the social, civic and economics as I do in Little Old New York.

Pittsburgh to me is a wonderful city; in its growth, its citizenship, its industries, its baseball (most of the time), and in other things as well that make us a great nation. . . .

I have a hope—possibly a wild one—that before many years all youth between the ages of 16 and 21 will have an opportunity to assume a degree of responsibility in civic and economic affairs. When the day arrives that it seems feasible to inaugurate a movement wherein youth between these ages is to be given a degree of civic and economic responsibility, Pittsburgh would be an ideal place in which to inaugurate the movement.

W. R. George.

No Action on Scrapping '24 Mine Pact

AGREEMENT REPORTED NEAR

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 17.—(AP.)—Deliberations of the international policy committee of the United Mine Workers of America tending toward setting the Union's policy in the bituminous coal suspension yesterday consumed four hours and a half and concluded without any action being announced. The group reconvened at 9:30 a. m. today.

Debate, it was understood, has centered about the union's position in Southern Illinois, where some miners have expressed desire to be free to negotiate separate wage agreement, written at a conference in which Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, played a prominent part, expired April 1, 1927, and in the absence of a new general settlement, the Indianapolis convention of the mine workers in 1927 decided that all wage negotiations must be based on that scale.

The agitation in Illinois resulted in a request by Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois district, for a meeting of the policy committee. Called together by John L. Lewis, international president, the group, charged with control of the strike policies of the union between conventions opened its meeting here last Wednesday.

DUCE'S FOE, GIOLITTI, DIES

CAVOUR, Italy, July 17.—(AP.) — Giovanni Giolitti, doughty warrior of the old Liberal school and five times premier of Italy, died this morning at the age of 85. He had been suffering for a long time from uremic poisoning and took a turn for the worse last week.

Giovanni Giolitti had retained his seat in the Chamber of Deputies until the end and his last appearance there was made under dramatic circumstances. As the lone spokesman for the opposition he made a futile attempt last March to prevent the passage of Premier Mussolini's measure making the Fascist party supreme by placing the final selection of candidates in its hands.

On the advent of the Fascist government Giolitti instructed his followers to support it. During the elections of 1924, however, he presented a list of his own in Piedmont which was not in opposition to, but independent of the Fascist government and in an election speech attributed many of the achievements of Fascism to his own party.

After the kidnaping and killing of the Socialist deputy Giacomo Matteotti, Giolitti went over to the opposition but did not leave the chamber when they withdrew to leave the impression that the government was implicated in the affair.

Before the advent of Fascism Giolitti had headed the government five times and between the governments he headed several premiers remained in power only at his discretion because of the majority he usually was able to control.

"GOODBY, CITY STREETS"

Off to the country, the real country, where there are fresh eggs, fresh milk and good, clean air. Such is the fortune of these Pittsburgh youngsters, part of a group of 120 taken from the city by the Epworth Fresh Air League to its farm at Bakerstown. This was taken as the youngsters surrounded Miss Ella Fieger, Methodist Episcopal Church deaconess, at the departure.

VICTIM OF FALL SUES BELLEVUE

Injuries suffered when he fell down a 6-foot concrete wall are the basis of a $10,000 damage suit filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday by Charles Bastin, a painter, 55 South Freemont street, Bellevue, against the Borough of Bellevue. He alleges that he wall, constructed by the borough in the rear of his apartment, was so placed as to make dangerous the descent of steps at the rear of the apartment. He asserts he is unable to carry on his trade as a painter.

Weather Conditions.

Relatively high pressure continues over the country east of the Mississippi, but the barometer is nearly the same everywhere in the high, which is favorable to unsettled conditions, and local cloudiness and showers. The skies are clear over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region, but from Tennessee and North Carolina southward there is considerable cloudiness, and scattered local showers occurred.

Showers were general over the Dakotos Minnesota, Nebraska and at scattered places in the Rocky Mountain states.

The temperatures are generally normal or above in this country, but in some of the Canadian Northwest provinces decidedly cold weather prevails. At Calgary the temperature is 38 and at Swift Current the minimum was 42.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling everywhere. Stage at Pittsburgh 12.9 feet; Dam No. 2, 6.2, and Dam No. 6, 10.3 feet. All the dams in the district will be raised today.

CITY COMPLAINS

When city officials issued a request to the people of Pittsburgh to help in keeping public parks clean, they had in mind this gentleman—one of many of his ilk. A roaming Sun-Telegraph photographer "caught" him very early in the morning, just as he rose after a night's sleep. After stretching himself, he sauntered off and left all of his paper blankets to the winds.

ANNEXATIONISTS LOSE, TRY AGAIN

ROSS TWP. FOLK REDUCE AREA

While Judge George V. Moore yesterday was sustaining the appeal against annexation of a portion of Ross township to Pittsburgh, annexationists appealed to Council for annexation of nearly one-half of the area which failed of admission.

The petition to Council was signed by more than three-fifths of the taxables in the area bounded by Ivory, Taylor, Cleveland, Morrison and Rodenbaugh streets.

Judge Moore, in an opinion handed down in Quarter Sessions Court, sustained the contention of anti-annexationists that three-fifths of the taxables in the original area had not signed the annexation petitions, as required by law. This area comprised 308 acres of the township between the city line and West View avenue, near the Keating stop.

The petition was presented to Council March 2. An ordinance was passed by Council March 19 and approved by Mayor Charles H. Kline March 22.

Anti-annexationists appealed to court and established by attacks on signatures and an increased list of taxables that the required three-fifths had not signed.

18 RAIDS IN DAY MADE HERE BY DRY AGENTS

Eighteen raids in various sections of the city and county late yesterday netted prohibition agents two automobiles, several stills, moonshine and home brew. A 300 gallon still in operation was reported found in a one-story frame building in Campbell street, Carnegie, where three men were taken into custody. Agents reported arresting William Hartwig, 33, Carothers avenue, Carnegie, when they found a "wild cat" brewery at his place. Besides the equipment they said they destroyed 600 bottles of beer. Mash was found in five residences at Gallatin and also in [illegible] Elizabeth homes.

Samuel Caldorni, 22, of 1202 Beaver avenue, was arrested last night by the agents as the driver of an automobile that contained 10 gallons moonshine. The car was seized in an alley, rear Clark street.

SELDOM SEEN'S PLIGHT TOLD

With 12 of its 50 inhabitants ill of typhoid fever, without roads over which automobiles, trucks or wagons can travel, without a single place on which an airplane can land, Seldom Seen's situation is critical, Council was informed yesterday by Public Works Director Edward G. Lang.

And Seldom Seen is not a village in the wastes of the Arctic or of the Sahara Desert, but a little community in the West End, Pittsburgh. Lang, saying the community is without bridges, sewers or pure water, informed Council that he is building a temporary pipe line to the place, but urged an investigation that will lead to permanent improvements.

VIEW FLOOD WRECKAGE

COUNCIL TO ASK QUICK REPAIR

An emergency appropriation of $45,000 to repair the flood damage in Becks Run will be granted by Council, President James F. Malone said today after a personal inspection of the situation. The investigation was made by members of Council, following charges that the Department of Public Works was not handling the situation efficiently in clearing away the debris.

Malone said that the department will be ordered to proceed with the work with all possible speed. It is likely that the entire roadway, which was badly torn by the flood, will be resurfaced.

The decision to make a personal investigation came after Mayor Charles H. Kline and Controller John H. Henderson had joined in a request for an emergency appropriation of $45,000 for cleaning the natural water course, catch basins, and sewer mouths and for reconstructing the wrecked walls, curbs and roadway in Becks Run.

Most of the councilmen joined in the attack on the manner in which the department has met the situation. John S. Herron demanding a special investigation of some sections of the West End where, he said, the cellars have been flooded seven times this year.

In the councilmanic discussion of the subject, the damage cause by the rains was linked with the delay in advertising bids for street and sewer improvements, many of which were authorized last year by Council. James F. Malone has charged that the delay in starting these improvements will prevent the city from completing projects in the recent bond issue this year.

After receiving a resolution demanding that bids be advertised for immediately, Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang informed Council that the first list of projects will be advertised today, the second July 26 and the third August 5.

Twenty street and sewer jobs, to be advertised July 26, will cost about $936,000, according to departmental estimates, the largest single item being the Thirty-third street trunk sewer authorized in the 1926 bond issue. Nineteen improvements, estimated to cost a total of $443,000, will be advertised August 5.

NEW LAKE CARGO RATES FILED

PITTSBURGH TO CARRY ON ITS FIGHT

New tariffs designed to put into effect the compromise 35-cent freight rate differential between Southern and Pittsburgh district coal shipments to the Great Lakes have been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Chesapeake and Ohio, Louisville and Nashville and Norfolk and Western railroads have raised their rate from $1.71 to $1.81 a ton. The increase goes into effect August 15, but since the compromise differential is not to take effect until January 1, 1929, the roads plan to grant a 10-cent refund until then.

The Northern carriers who have made the differential 45 cents at the present time by granting their shippers a 20-cent refund will cease to pay it after December 31.

TO CONTINUE FIGHT

Pittsburgh coal men are not satisfied with the 35-cent arrangement and will continue to fight for a 45-cent differential.

A coal rate controversy has developed between the Central Pennsylvania and West Virginia fields. The rate from the New River field to Washington, D. C., has been increased. Charles O'Neill, of Altoona, secretary of the Central Pennsylvania Coal Producers' Association, has sent telegrams to civic organizations in the capital, defending the raise.

BUGS BAER Says

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE Boyish Scoots have taken our advice in the matter of "no smoking" signs.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

They will not police the nation in midget squads under the impression that a daily good deed means yanking a corncob from an old lady's face with such enthusiasm that they also pull out a yard of bridgework at the same time.

We are thankful that the Boy Scoots are going to stick to reform within the party.

As a boy we always looked upon smokers with great reverence and awe. We remember Uncle Ben who told us to watch him closely while he blew smoke out of his ears.

Uncle Ben always smoked a cigar until it looked like a discarded painter's brush. He would take a big inhaler of the smoke and we used to watch him carefully to observe the smoke coming out of his ears.

At that time we did not know that eustachian tubes were not chimneys. While we watched his ears like a hound dog at a rabbit hole, Uncle Ben would burn the back of our hand with the lighted cigar stub.

Which was supposed to be a great joke. But the first time Uncle Ben pulled that gag we low-bridged him with a parlor lamp. And that time the smoke did come out of his ears.

The smoke not only came out of his ears, but out of his toupee, his underwear, his sleeves and his pant legs.

We cured Uncle Ben's ears of the smoking habit. He still balances cigars between a lower lip and an upper tooth. But he doesn't embezzle any more Boy Scooters with that ear business.

The Boy Scoots is a fine organization, dedicated to the great outdoors. If it stays away from afternoon teas, the lounge room of the Mauretania and the mezzanines of Park avenue it will never be annoyed by ancient flappers breathing sparks and cinders like unto St. George's dragon.

The birds, the bees, the squirrels and the woodchucks are within the jurisdiction of the Scoots.

The ponds, the lakes and the sunshine are also theirs. But when you are less interested in freckles than you are in beauty spots on a nicotined chin, then you are no longer a Boy Scoot and woe is yours.

HE PULLS PLANES

If you don't believe it, the world will roll on just the same, but "The Mighty Atom," as he calls himself, has strong hair! He can drag an airplane, or hold it back, all with his hair. Doubting Thomases (and Doubting Johns, Henrys, Georges, etc.) are advised to bring their own airplanes.

CITY TO RUN FREE SUNDAY BUSSES IN PARKS

NO DECISION ON SIGHT SEEING DAILY LINE

Free automobile bus service on Sundays will be provided by the city in Schenley, Highland and Riverview parks during the rest of the summer season.

Council, on motion of John S. Herron, has decided to start the service as an experiment and has authorized the drawing of a contract with the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, each bus to cost the city $35 a day.

No decision has been reached by Council on the problem of permitting the motor coach company to operate sight-seeing busses through Schenley and Highland parks. The company has asked the Public Service Commission for a permit to operate such busses, but City Solicitor Charles A. Waldschmidt has ruled that Council has complete control, so far as the parks are concerned.

GEBHARDT GIRL GETS PAROLE

Marie Gebhardt, 19, of 1104 Spring Garden avenue, North Side, was so infatuated with Charles Bauer, known as Sailor Jack, that association with him, in violation of parole, brought her a jail sentence. Yesterday, admitting ignorance of his whereabouts, she was released. Judge Richard W. Martin granted her a parole for one year after she had served two months in jail.

Both appeared before Judge Martin in December, 1926, charged with taking improper pictures. Bauer was sent to the workhouse, the girl paroled.

POSTMASTER ROBBED OF $1,000 AT GARY, W. VA.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., July 17.—(AP.)—McDowell county authorities are searching for a bandit who held up J. H. Petty, postmaster at Gary, and robbed him of $1,000. Petty had worked late upon his record books. As he left the postoffice he was halted by a masked man, forced to return to the building and to open the safe. Bloodhounds were unsuccessful in trailing the bandit.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A TRUTH TRIANGLE

By LILY WANDEL

POLLY BYERS opened her brown eyes wide and looked both satisfied and important. After all a proposal is interesting even if one has waited nearly 10 years to hear it. A few weeks ago Polly would have been overwhelmed with gratefulness, the fruit of Allen's long self-sacrificing friendship.

Her twitter of a laugh was not of the usual eager applause variety. There was something secretive about it, entirely for herself and it brought a cloud of anxiety over Allen's face. "I think," said Polly thoughtfully, "you are suffering from a responsibility-complex, Allen. We've been neighbors for so long and you've had the burden of my friendship on your shoulders for 10 years. In other words, I've become a habit."

"Is that quite fair, Polly?" Allen answered amazed and agitated. "You know there was an unspoken understanding between us. I never looked at another girl and if I ever seemed neglectful, you know it was my work."

She sighed faintly as if she were remembering those weeks of uncertainty and agony that cropped up every so often. "That's true, I suppose. You always were very honest with me, even to telling me when a hat was unbecoming or my nose was shiny!" Her eyes twinkled, but Allen's were grim with despair.

"Don't you like honesty, Polly?" he asked. "You always claimed you did. I told you truthfully a number of times that I could not marry until I made good. I thought we were pals working together for a common goal. Playwriting is a hard career, and I believed you understood," he added bitterly. "You've changed and it's all due to that paper mill stock you've inherited and the influence of that unscrupulous, red-headed lawyer!"

"Was it?" thought Polly in alarm and aloud she asked: "What makes you think Mr. Spottles is dishonest?"

"Surely you know how lawyers twist and turn facts to suit themselves. I'll be glad when you're through with him."

"I haven't heard him tell an untruth," she declared, and flushed as she thought of the inheritance tax. Hadn't Spottles placed the paper mill stock at a ridiculously low figure in order to defraud the government and thereby save her money? After all, Allen was honest. An untruthful husband would mean a wretched life, wouldn't it?

Allen laughed a trifle patronizingly. "Well, I have. Didn't he tell you yesterday that blue dress was the most becoming thing?" She nodded, pleased and attentive. "Well, it's not. There's something wrong with the neckline and it's too short and tight—honestly, Polly."

She nodded, realizing that she never would be quite so happy and self-reliant in that blue dress again.

"Now that I really have my chance to get my play produced, really am in a position marry you—"

Polly interrupted with a little gasp of surprise. "Allen! Who is it? Baily & Co. or the Nuberts, of course." She leaned closer, excited.

"Neither. A man called Morrison." Allen looked slightly annoyed.

"Morrison?" Polly raised her eyebrows. "He picked a flop last year, didn't he? "But yours will be a winner," she hastened to say, "and he's going to stand the whole expense? It's wonderful, Allen!"

"No, it's a 50-50 proposition," he flushed uncomfortably.

A curious feeling of enlightenment came over Polly, much to her distress. Allen had not any money, of that she was sure, but now she had, due to Uncle Henry's will. Supposing Uncle Henry had left that paper mill stock to a distant cousin would Allen have asked her, Polly, to marry him? "What a wretched, low mind I have," thought Polly, flushing with shame, "to accuse Allen, who is so painfully truthful, of asking me to marry him so he can produce his play!" But wouldn't it be better to make sure? Had she already learned something from this scheming, unscrupulous lawyer?

"I see," she remarked finally in a careful voice, "you're going to form a company and you will own half of the stock." Allen nodded eagerly, delighted at her understanding. "Well," said Polly easily, "I hope it won't turn out like this paper mill stock you claim has turned my head."

The cigaret in Allen's hand fell into his coffee cup. "What on earth do you mean?" he demanded to know, too honest to conceal his alarm.

Polly smiled. "That each share is worth only a couple of dollars," she informed him carelessly, inwardly aghast at her deception. "And if you don't believe me, here's the inheritance tax I paid." She fished a slip of paper out of her bag and passed it across the lunch table to him.

She waited, trembling, as he read the proof of her poverty.

"Polly," he said, after a moment, "we're just where we were before." He looked at her out of agonized eyes. "We'll have to wait and wait— You can't imagine what this means to me, Polly." She nodded sympathetically. After all, Allen was truthful. If the inheritance paved the way to their marriage, what was the difference? Didn't he love her? Wasn't he broken-hearted because he thought they would have to wait again? All my hope and ambition wrapped up in this play and now I'll have to wait and wait—" His voice sank drearily away.

Polly gasped and then in sudden glorious relief she laughed. "Buck up, Allen," she advised him briskly. "There are plenty of girls who have paid big inheritance taxes; in fact, I can introduce you to one or two. Get busy and your play will be on the stage in six months!"

Only a few weeks later Polly's troubled brown eyes were looking into the adoring blue ones of a red-headed lawyer. "Dick, it's the most beautiful engagement ring, but if I take it," she shook her head, "it'll always remind me of something." And thought, "Who am I to judge honesty when I tricked Allen about that paper mill stock? I, who worshipped honesty, to fall in love with this unscrupulous lawyer!"

"Of course," Dick Spottles laughed, drawing her closer, "of me and my loving you from the moment I saw you! But seriously, Polly, what's wrong with the ring?"

"It belongs to the government," faltered Polly in a whisper of fear, "you know what I mean—screwing down the value of the paper mill stock to make the inheritance tax low. Dick, it'll always remind me of unpaid taxes, so I really can't take it, even if it breaks my heart." Anxiously, she watched him throw back his red head and laugh as heartily as, well, an honest man would.

"So you thought you fell in love with a swindler, Polly, my own?" he teased, and then taking both her cold little hands into his warm paws, "Sweetness and innnocence, did you really think I would or could defraud the government? I'm sorry, dear, but the inheritance tax you paid is perfectly correct, that's all the stock is worth. Polly child, I did juggle my words to you a little, intentionally misleading you. I wanted you to think you had inherited a fortune because... well, Polly, you were such a timid little mouse of a girl, hardly daring to call your name your own, and I wanted to see what you'd be like with a backing of money. I happened to know all about Allen and Polly, dear, I wanted to see you self-reliant and independent before you'd decide whom you'd marry. You see, I was there for you to choose, too. Like a new becoming dress, money often gives us a neat balance of self-confidence and judgment which brings remarkable results. You don't mind, Polly, love?" a bit anxiously.

"Mind," breathed Polly and gave him a mighty hug, "why, you've made a truthful woman out of me!"

TRUCK SEIZED, RAPS POLICE

"A pure case of larceny and not a mistake on the part of the police," was the manner in which F. C. Lohmann, manager of the Library garage, characterized the manner in which his truck was towed from private property at 807 East Diamond street in a letter to Council.

Lohmann said that when police took the truck on June 29 he protested and was told that the property was an extension of Nance way, which he denies is the case. His daily loss since the truck was towed away has been $25, he said.

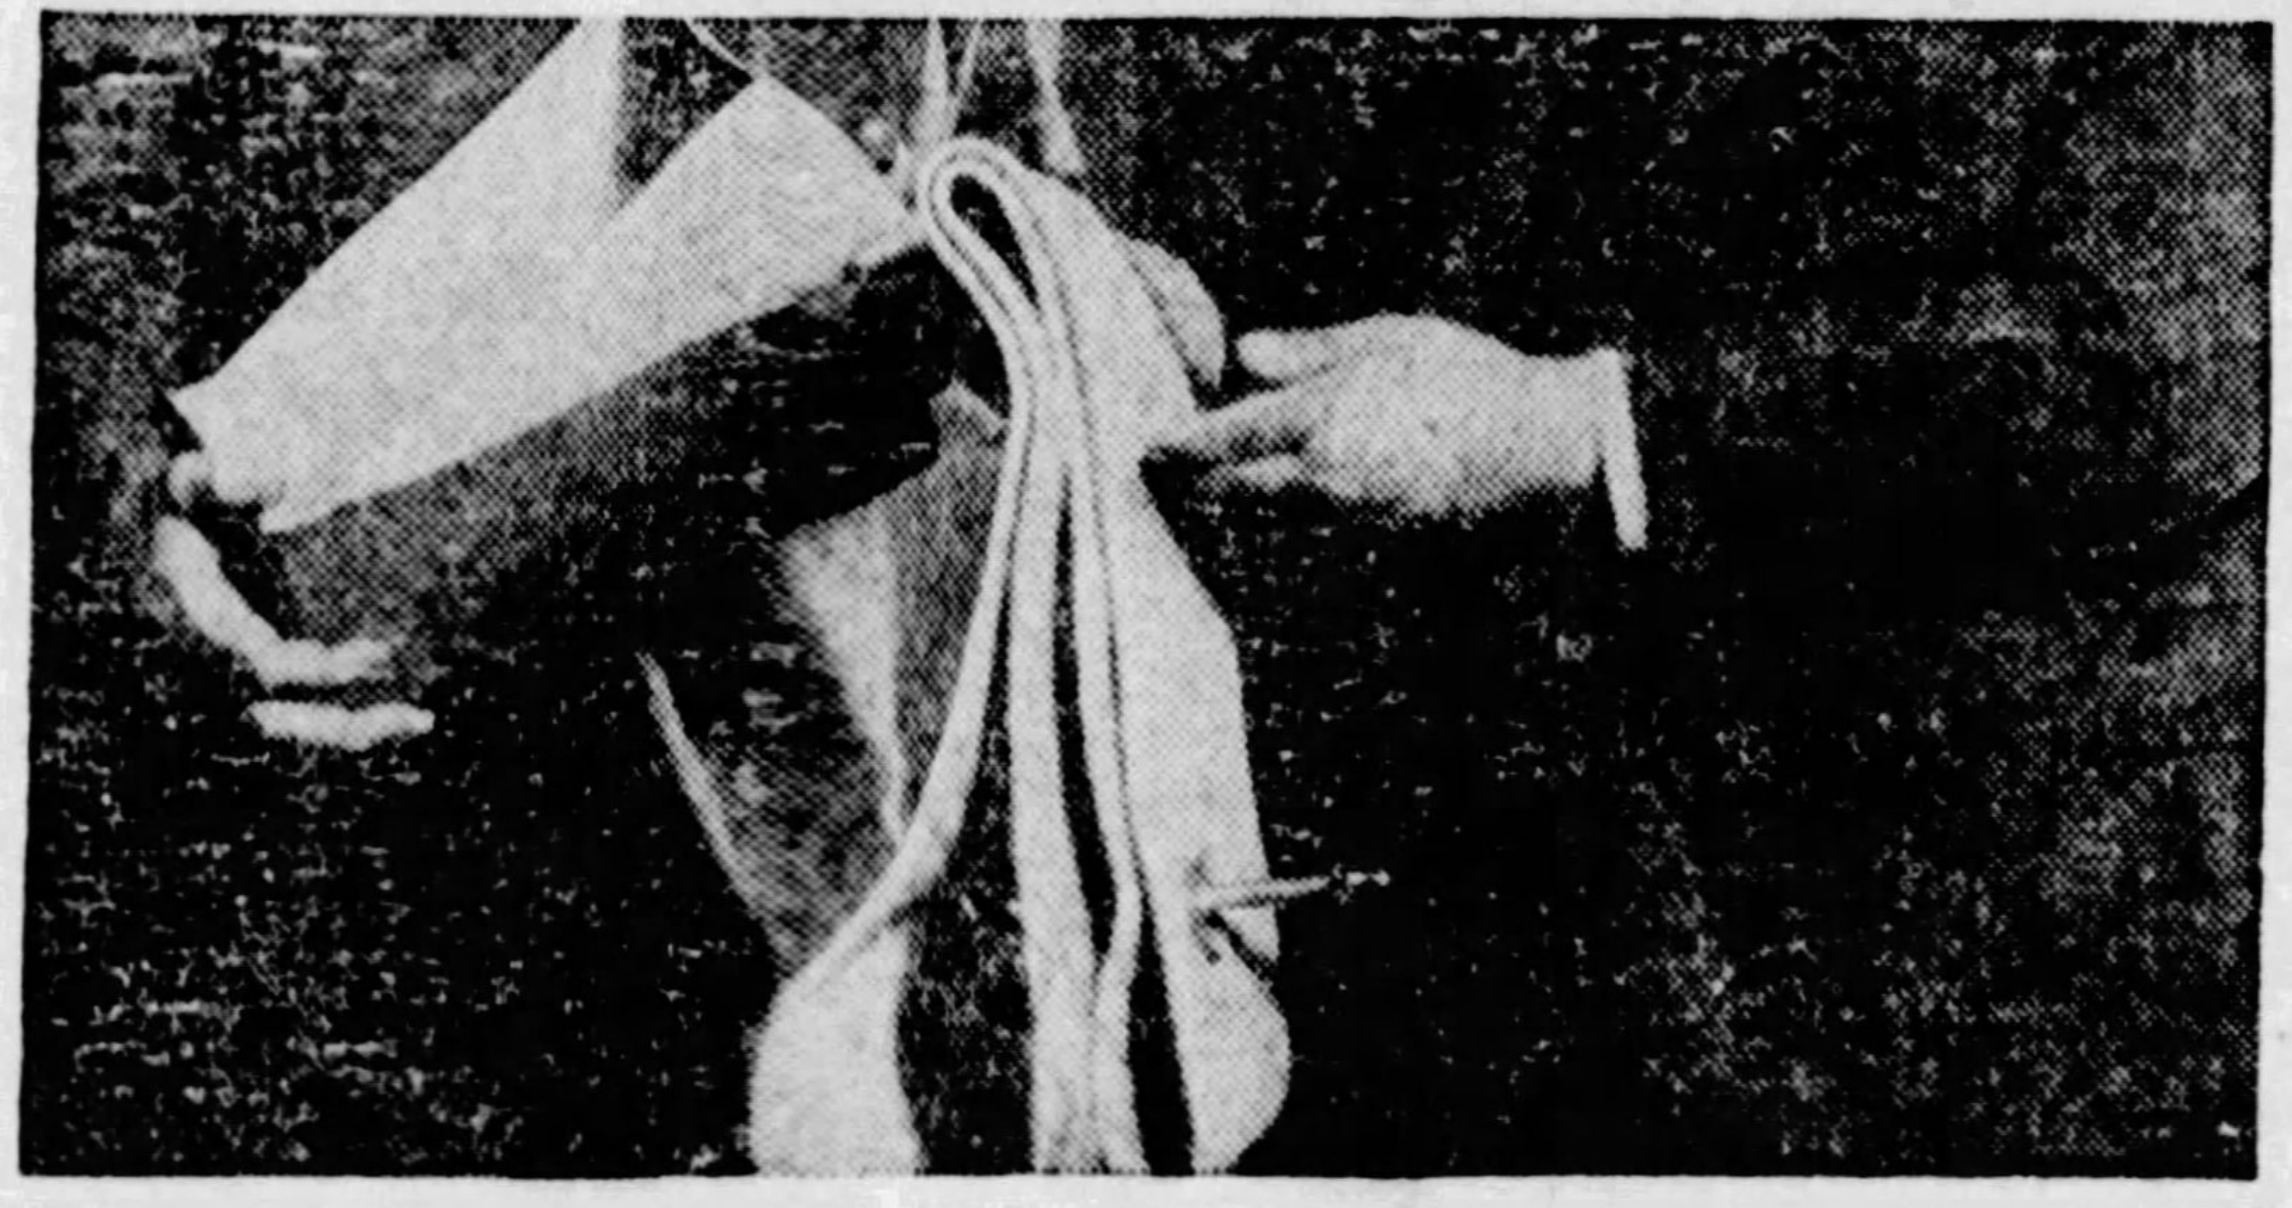
A new inner tube? Let your tooth paste pay for it



How come, you ask? Do a little arithmetic with us and find out. The average dentifrice costs you 50c. You use about a tube a month. Twelve times fifty equals six dollars, the yearly cost. Listerine Tooth Paste costs 25c (the large tube). Twelve times twenty-five equals three dollars. All right. Six dollars minus three dollars equals three dollars, your annual saving. Spend it as you please, the inner tube is merely a suggestion.

Demanded by millions— a first class tooth paste at 25¢

WOULDN'T a young man or woman starting out in life be glad to cut the yearly tooth paste bill from $6 to $3?

Wouldn't a man paying bills for a family of seven like to reduce the family tooth paste bill from $42 to $21?

We thought they would. Investigation showed that thousands of others felt the same way.

Therefore, we produced a really first class dentifrice at 25c for a large tube. Half of what you usually pay.

Listerine Tooth Paste is its name. Ultra-modern methods of manufacture, alone, permit such a price for such a paste.

In it are contained certain ingredients that our fifty years' study of tooth and mouth conditions taught us are necessary to a first class dentifrice for the perfect cleansing of all types of teeth.

Outstanding among them is a marvelous new and gentle polishing agent so speedy in action that tooth brushing is reduced to a minimum.

We ask you to try this delightful dentifrice one month. See how white it leaves your teeth. How good it makes your mouth feel. Judge it by results alone. And then reflect that during the year, it accomplishes a worthwhile saving. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

STAGE AND SCREEN ACTIVITIES DETAILED IN PICTURES AND GOSSIP ABOUT PLAYERS

"It Happened In Pittsburgh," Presented First Time In Pitt, Gives Audience Evening of Fun

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"IT HAPPENED IN PITTSBURGH," by Mabel Kroman, comedienne of the George Sharp Players, presented for the first time on any stage, in the Pitt last night, proved to be uproariously amusing to a large audience, which had an evening of continuous laughter at the troubles of Elmer Nebblepredder and his relatives. Beginning with the lamenatations of Elmer's aunt and his mother over the death of a distant relative, it builded fun throughout its three acts on a lugubrious theme, with trouble piling on trouble until, like weeds, it grew so rankly that in the end it just killed itself.

Miss Kroman played the complaining aunt of the central character, a floorwalker in a department store, and if she missed shedding a tear about anything under the sun, it was just because she didn't have time. Elmer, played by George Baxter, was a helpful lad who didn't want anybody to do any worrying but himself. But he was unequal to the burden, when at the end of the second act it developed that his father, not too fond of work, had decided to quit his job, that the boy of the family had run away because a visit of the truant officer had revealed his delinquency at school, and that sister's young man, whose engagement Elmer had helpfully fixed up, was about to be arrested as a thief. It was a hysterical and very funny climax. Of counse, all was satisfactorily straightened out in the third act, with Elmer declaring that there must be a reform in the family.

Mr. Baxter, as Elmer, appeared too high-strung, but the exaggeration perhaps was less of a fault than a too mild characterization might have been. Miss Kroman was skillful in her portrayal of an unsympathetic character part. Kathryn Demming and Brown Mehard did well as Elmer's wife and sister. James Carey was a natural boy as the kid brother, his work being impressive. May Buckley and Gus Forbes, in the parental roles, pleased. Johnny Moore, Robert Lawrence, Robert Fisk and Edwin Vail gave a good account of themselves.

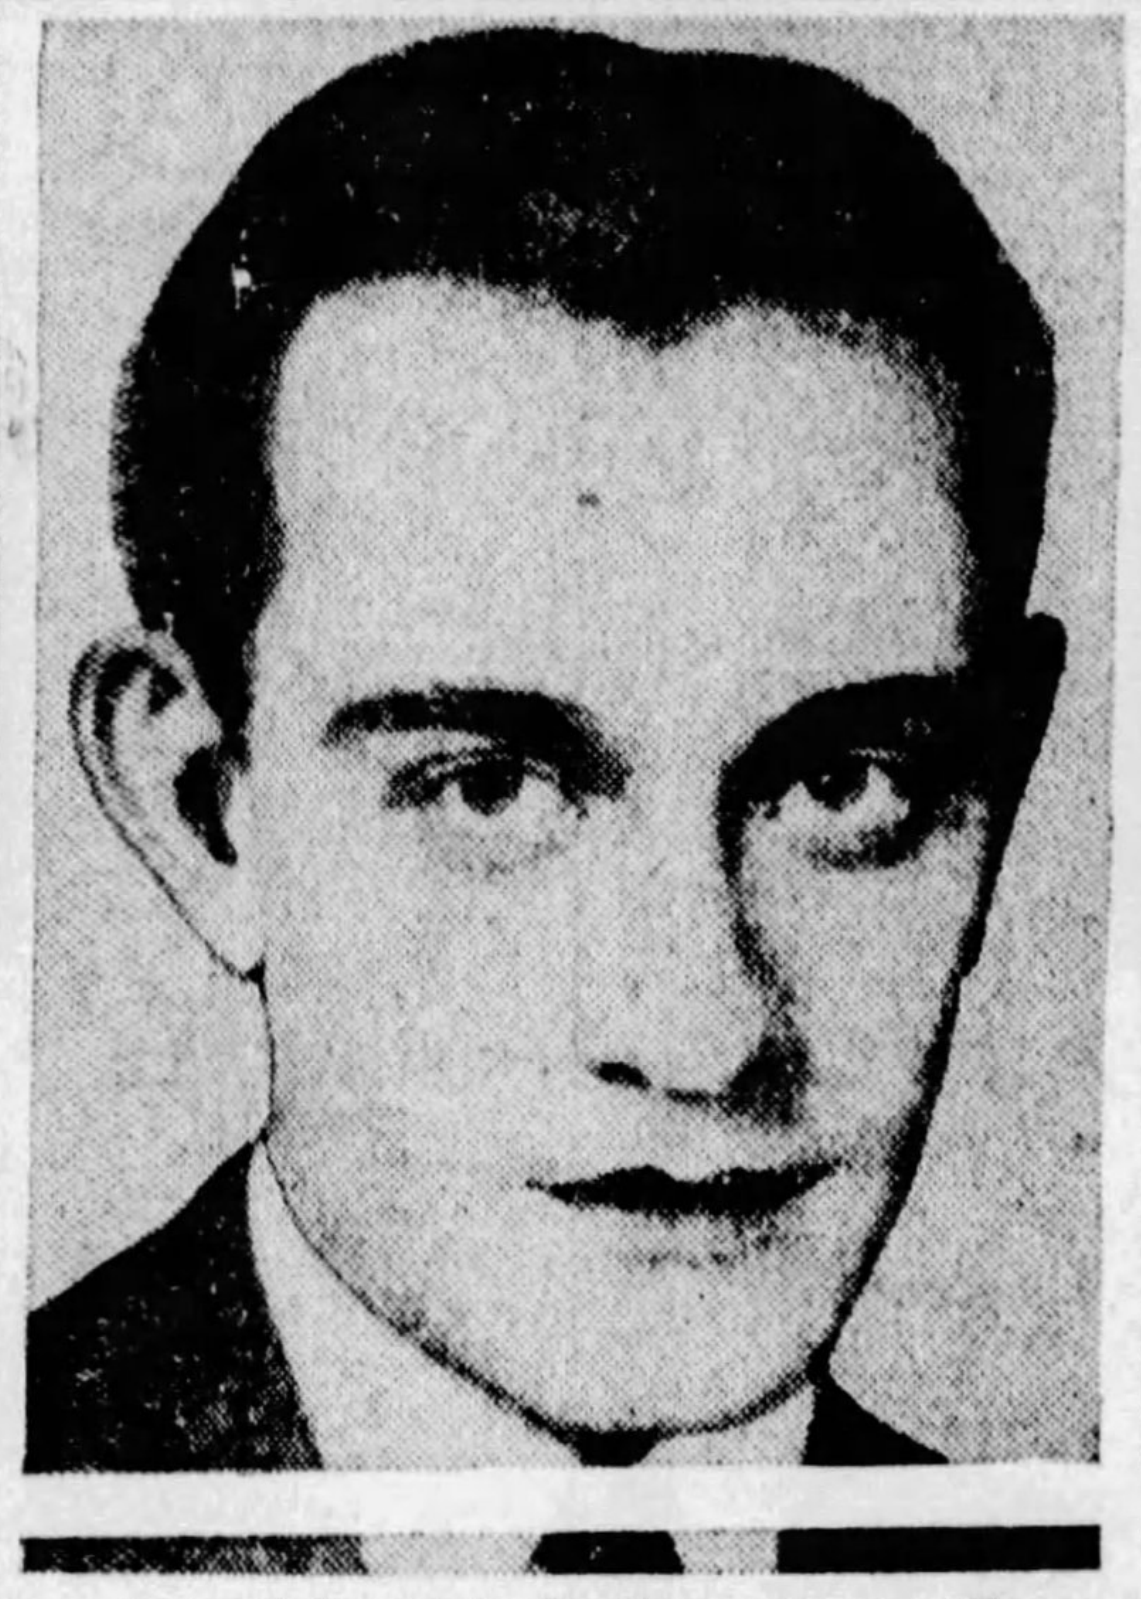
"THE CAPTIVE" IS KEPT AS BILL IN GAYETY

"The Captive," which had its initial Pittsburgh presentation in the Gayety last week, began the second week of its engagement in that theater last night. Marcia Byron, Bradley Page, Frank Elliott and Helen Mack play leading roles with much finesse. Others in the cast include Marjorie Dille, Beresford Lovett and Constance Pellisier.

THESPIANS ALL -:- WHO LEND THEIR ART -:- TO CURRENT BILLS

Kathryn Card, of the Nixon Players, who present "The Best People" as week's Nixon comedy.

Constance Pellisier, who plays a role in "The Captive," remaining a second week in the Gayety.



Conrad Nagel is leading man in "Tenderloin," talking movie shown on screen of Stanley.

Marceline Day, featured woman in "A Certain Young Man," screen attraction in the Penn.

May Buckley, new member of the George Sharp Players, presenting "It Happened in Pittsburgh," in Pitt.

TALKING FILM IN STANLEY

"Tenderloin," a melodramatic photoplay of the underworld, offering several "spoken" sequences, is the screen feature this week in the Stanley. The "talking" portions of the production add little to the dramatic plot. However, it is quite a novelty to hear the voices of Dolores Costello, the star; Conrad Nagel, the leading man, and some of the other players. The "spoken" sequence at close—with three reformed crooks and Dolores rendering "Sweet Adaline"—left the audience at yesterday's performances in a high good humor and caused quite a bit of applause. Nagel possesses quite a dramatic voice. As for Dolores, she puts plenty of emotion into her spoken words—but in her case, as with some of the other speaking parts—there are portions difficult to understand. The story isn't very original, recounting once more the over-played theme of an innocent girl caught in the clutches of gangsters and of a crook who reforms for love. The continuity of the piece also is weak. The climax is reached in a storm sequence—done just as D. W. Griffith would stage it. "It Might Happen," a sort of futuristic presentation, is the stage feature. Ted King is master of ceremonies. A girl, Dolores, does some fast stepping. Reckless Recko, in a burlesque acrobatic act, gets the laughs. Other entertainers are Cogert and Motto, Billy Roles, Grace Johnson and the Eight Kaufman Girls.

NOVARRO STAR IN PENN

Ramon Novarro, in "A Certain Young Man," screen attraction, and "Main Street to Broadway," a Loew-Publix revue, are the principal offerings in the Penn. The stage acts create more enthusiasm than the film, which is a comedy with the star as a high-hatted dandy whose reputation for affairs with women causes frequent mention of him in the scandal news of the day as "a certain young man." His reputation causes an estrangement when real love comes into his life. The young woman, knowing his past, fails to understand when he gallantly tries to shield the character of another visiting his apartment. Later, of course, she does. It has a few laughs but nothing much in the way of emotional strength. Novarro does well as a fop who comes to his senses. Renee Adoree, Marceline Day and Carmel Myers play three young women who interest him. In the lively stage bill are Barnett and Clark, tap dancers; Burday and Norway, acrobatic dancers, and Almira Sessions, singing comedienne, all of whom register with the audience. Arthur Campbell, singer; Joe Besser, comic, and a dancing chorus of six boys and six girls, also are on the bill. The orchestra plays Liszt selections illustrated by a screen romance with Liszt as a character. News pictures and organlogue are other features.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY AT DINNER IN PINES

The Ladies' Missionary Society of Bellevue will hold a dinner dance in The Pines, Perrysville road, tonight. The open air dance floor is a feature at this resort. Music is furnished by the Wash-Jeff Nine.

Eruptions Caused Unspeakable Pain Cuticura Healed

"My arms and hands broke out with a rash which spread to my face and formed hard, red pimples. The pimples festered and irritated to such an extent that I could not keep my hands from them, and the more I scratched the more they burned. After scratching, large eruptions formed that caused unspeakable pain and entire loss of rest. I was ashamed to go to any place.

"The trouble went on for about four months and all the time I was trying different remedies but without relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in one month I was completely healed." (Signed) George Smith, 528 State St., Brooklyn, N.Y., March 12, 1928.

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment as required, keeps the skin fresh, smooth and clear. Cuticura Talcum is an ideal toilet powder.

'BEST PEOPLE' WELL DONE IN NIXON

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"The Best People," a comedy by Avery Hopwood and David Gray, is being presented in the Nixon this week. And it is a highly capable presentation that Harry Bannister and his supporting players give.

The story centers around the Lennox family, members of whom are considered among New York's best people. You first meet them in the living room of their home—Mrs. Bronson Lennox, the mother—aristocratic and high-strung; Bronson Lennox, the father—puzzled and much interested in the welfare of his family; Marion Lennox, the daughter—slangy and keen on the cigarets; Bertie Lennox, the son—handsome and indolent, and George Grafton, better known as Uncle George, a great stickler for family tradition. And what a time these "best people" had before finis was written on their experiences by David Gray and Avery Hopwood.

For one thing, Marion, played charmingly by Katherine Wilson, causes them worry, with her slang, use of cigarets and habit of breaking off engagements. Right before your eyes her fifth romance hits the rocks when she gives Lord Rockmore the "air" in one breath and tells her mother: "Don't ritz me, I've seen you with your hair down," in another. Then the chauffeur reports he has wrecked Mrs. Lennox's motor car. But this chauffeur, portrayed by Harry Bannister, does more than wreck a car. He nearly wrecks the fashionable seclusion of the home when Marion falls in love with him. But, that all develops later, as does son Bertie's romance with a chorus girl.

Much of the second act, laid in private dining room, No. 1, and private dining room No. 7, of a more or less notorious restaurant in the theatrical district, deals with the efforts of Uncle George and Father to prevent Bertie from marrying the chorus girl, Alice by name, and played by Louise Quinn. The pair of schemers "frame" a dinner engagement with Alice and her girl friend, Millie, posing as a couple of gay old fellows from Boston.

But there's no need for worry. The final act sees the solution of the various difficulties.

The talented Helena Gregg pleased as Millie; Fred Sullivan did well as Mr. Lennox, and Kathryn Card was well cast as Mrs. Lennox. Other players included Norman Porter, Sara Floyd, Clifford Edge and Frank Reyman.

"SHOW BOAT" INSPIRES OVERTURE IN STANLEY

David Broudy's selection of the overture at the Stanley Theater this week was inspired by the publication by The Sun-Telegraph of Edna Ferber's story, "Show Boat." The music is from the operetta "Show Boat," produced by Flo Ziegfeld, and which had its premiere in this city last winter. When taken into New York a week later it took the metropolis by storm and is still playing to capacity business.

"Show Boat" is numbered among the season's biggest hits because of the excellence of the numbers that go to make up the score. In the overture Musical Conductor Broudy is playing this week he has included "Why Do I Love You?", "Make Believe," "Can't Help Lovin' That Man" and "Old Man River," acknowledged to be one of the finest songs of recent years.

'HAROLD TEEN' IN GRAND, FILM OF COMIC STRIP

"Harold Teen," filmed from the comic strip, is the offering at the Grand this week. Harold is played by a clever youngster, Arthur Lake, who is ably aided by Mary Brian as "Sheba." Jack Duffy plays the aid to love's young dream, Grandfather Teen and Alice White is "Giggles." It is well directed and amusing. All there even to "Leaping Lena." "The Shebas and Their Sheiks," is a musical and dance offering by three girls and two men. "The Collegians," starring George Lewis with all the collegiate troubles of framed baseball games and a stolen pitching ace ended the popular college comedy reel "until school again in the fall." The newsreel one reeler, "Art in Hollywood," and an organ feature complete the bill.

COMEDIAN HIT IN HARRIS THEATER

There's an amusing bill in the Harris for the first three days of the week. George McClennan, a blackfaced comedian, will keep you laughing with his novel dance steps, playing on a clarinet and clever monologue. One moment he is elucidating on who will bury the last man to die on this earth—and the next he is doing a pantomime of a poker game. The Golden Bird, an educated canary, is again in Pittsburgh as another feature of the current Harris bill. This bird imitates the calls of various other birds and the sounds of various musical instruments. Jim Stacey and Julie Faye give a breezy, entertaining act of chatter and buffoonery. Adelyn Jason, assisted by a piano player, offers a refreshing program of songs. Amoras and Janet, billed as "Physical Marvels," and Delany and Corson in "A Bit o' Nature," complete the vaudeville bill. The photoplay feature is "Sally of the Scandals," which presents a story of the stage with Broadway as its locale. Bessie Love is the star. News pictures and an organlogue are on the bill.

DANCE AND COMEDY FEATURES IN SHERIDAN

The Sheridan Square Theater for the first three days of this week is featuring Pressler and Klaiss in an act of song and comedy, and Joan Elton and company, with Alex Ruloff, in "Poetry of Motion," a terpsichorean act. Gwynne, the Pittsburgh magician, presents "Oriental and Occidental Oddities." Dallas Walker and Sister, from the Lone Star State, clever singers and dancers, handle a lariat with skill. Morrissey and Murray have a novelty number. The film is "Sally of the Scandals," a comedy-drama of New York's bright light district, with Bessie Love as the star. Allan Forrest is leading man.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Growing List of Buds for Coming Winter Gives Promise of Busy and Gay Social Season

IT SEEMS to me that every winter the list of girls making their first bows to society grows just a little longer. Ever since the war, when, of course, there were no debut parties at all, more and more girls have had formal coming-out parties. Last year there was a particularly representative group of debutantes and as a consequence the season was especially lively. And as for the coming winter, it is quite apparent that there will be more girls than ever on the list of buds and certainly that can mean nothing but a still gayer season. Surely it is pleasant to think about, anyway, with everything so dull just now and practically everyone leaving the city.

Yesterday, you may remember, I told you about quite a few girls who are debutante possibilities, and now I find that there are several others who should be added to the group. Frances Johnston is one. Frances, you know, is a daughter of the Norwood Johnstons, of Shady avenue, and she is likely to make her bow to her parents' friends sometime during the fall or winter. At the present time she and her father and mother are down at White Sulphur Springs for a while.

Certainly on the list of girls is Betty Burger Dunlap, daughter of the Will Knox Dunlaps, of South Highland avenue. Mrs. Dunlap is making definite preparations to bring Betty out, and instead of the tea which is almost a tradition, she is planning to have a dinner dance. And in addition to the coming out party, a number of other affairs are being arranged for the debutante. Perhaps the most important of these is the dinner dance which Betty's godfather, Henry D. Shute, of Emerson street, is going to give the night of January 3 in the Pittsburg Golf Club. You may remember that Betty was a student at Smith College last year, but I understand that she has decided not to go back there next winter.

AS for our travelers, I hear that the E. J. Schellentragers, of the Schenley apartments, are now on the ocean, Europe-bound. They are planning to visit various countries abroad during the remainder of the summer. The W. L. Mitchells, who also live at the Schenley apartments, are going to sail for Europe this week, I believe, and will remain there throughout the summer.

Among other residents of the apartments who have gone out of town are the John S. McKelveys, who are at Spring Lake, N. J., for the balance of the season, while Miss Virginia C. Dalzell is at Lake Placid to stay until September.

The George W. Crawfords, of Woodland road, are back at White Sulphur Springs again after spending six weeks abroad. With them is Mrs. Crawford's mother, Mrs. Robert N. Warmack. Also out of town are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Bell, who are included in a group of guests which Dr. and Mrs. T. Laurence Saunders are entertaining at Edna Villa, Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom M. Girdler, who are living in Academy avenue, Edgeworth, were out of town over the week-end, I understand. They visited Cyrus Eaton, of Cleveland and New York, at his country home outside of Cleveland.

The bride wore a period gown of ivory faille and Chantilly lace, with a fan-shaped train of faille and tulle, and her veil was of ivory tulle and rose point lace, an heirloom in the family. It was arranged in coronet effect with orange blossoms, and she carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley. Miss Marion and Miss Christine Griggs, sisters of the bridegroom, were maid of honor and bridesmaid. The former wore pale green taffeta with a hip bow of lavender taffeta, while the latter appeared in lavender taffeta with a bow of green. John R. Hanna, of Franklin was best man and the ushers included Raymond F. Moreland of Pittsburgh, and Raymond Kruse of Randolph, N. Y. A reception and supper followed the ceremony, with covers laid for 16 at the bridal table. After a motor trip through New England and Southern Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Griggs will be at home in the East End.

The Negroes also protested against open vice conditions which they declare were responsible for the killings.

Both men were shot by patrolmen who say they acted in line of duty. The principal speaker was the Rev. Arthur V. B. Hightower, president of the brotherhood organization.

Two Stolen Idols

By FRANK L. PACKARD

The Whole Crew Is Drunk, And Bob Prays No Harm Will Come to Verna

CHAPTER LIII.

BOB KINGSLEY stirred uneasily. God help the poor wretch! In a sense he had brought it upon himself, and his hands were far from clean—but they were white compared with the hands of those who plucked their victim's flesh piecemeal from his body, and were smeared with the filth of the atrocious torture they inflicted! But the man must be mercifully near his end now. He had not heard Mindar Singh scream for, it must be, fully an hour. He raised his head—and dropped it again on his arms. Mindar Singh was down there on the same side of the deck as himself, and in plain sight—but he did not want to look.

He groaned suddenly. Mindar Singh's sufferings were about over—but what about Verna? She was as far aft on the schooner as he was forward; but, unlike himself, though obviously restrained from coming further forward than the after-house, he knew she was neither tied nor bound, and, within restricted limits, was free to walk about, for sometimes he had seen her there. Not often in the daytime, even when the trim of the schooner's sails made it possible for him to see along his side of the deck, for the writhings and whimperings of Mindar Singh stood between them then and she had kept to the opposite side; but at night when the schooner was on the port tack he had seen her standing there for hours like a white wraith in the darkness—and he knew she was looking at him.

So far, he was satisfied that she was unharmed—and Chen-shu had pointed to her as evidence that he had kept faith! Faith! Oh, God! With hypocritical regret Chen-shu had explained that, though a berth in the cabin was offered to her, she had refused it and had slept on the deck. Bob Kingsley's teeth bit into his lips. A cabin shared with Chen-shu and Java Dick! She would have thrown herself overboard first! Thank God they had not driven her to that! But Chen-shu was too crafty to go to extremes until the moment came when he could do so with the certainty established that he risked nothing thereby. Chen-shu was fully convinced that in so far as Luala and the creek at Luala were concerned, he, Bob Kingsley, had told the truth, since in these two particulars anything but the truth would have been at once apparent; but for the rest, though Chen-shu might believe in the details of the burnt tree and the flat rock, he had no means of knowing whether he had been tricked or not. Chen-shu would first make sure of that, while Verna was still a hostage to force the truth if an untruth had been told. That was all, until the treasure was actually found, that stood between him, Bob Kingsley, and death—all that stood between Verna and worse than death.

After the treasure was found, the end would come. There was just one hope left, a slender one, like the catching at the proverbial straw. It depended first on the fact that the schooner, being little better than a derelict, had probably been laid up somewhere when Java Dick had got hold of her, and that her equipment had either run to seed or been stolen. Her rigging was rotten, her canvas was worse, and nothing in years had ever apparently been renewed. The wonder was that she was left with even one boat, which was all she had. That was the first point. It might not be very seaworthy, and probably wasn't, but there was only one boat. The second point was that, where before this had brought him added anxiety, he now counted on Capt. Scarface being at Luala.

For three days now, since he had first satisfied himself that there was but one boat, he had buoyed himself up and fought back despair with a bitter determination to cling to what might in the end be only an illusion, but which, meanwhile, held out at least a glimmer of hope. The boat would not hold many. It was certain that both Chen-shu and Java Dick would go ashore; and it was almost equally certain that Verna and himself would be taken along—there would be room, then, for no more than three or four of the crew at the outside. The odds in that case would be in Captain Scarface's favor—and Captain Scarface might be able to effect a rescue.

A slender hope! He had never ranked it otherwise. Verna and he might not be taken ashore in the boat, and, even if they were, Captain Scarface might have gone, or might not see them, or might not bring about anything but disaster, perhaps even to himself, in a fight that might take place. Or perhaps Captain Scarface's schooner itself might be seen unless it was anchored behind some headland, and Chen-shu would become wary and reconnoiter before he made any move at all. Not much to count upon! Not much—when it meant Verna's life!

But that was for tomorrow—the end, whatever it might be, would not come until tomorrow. It was already within an hour of sunset, and even if a breeze sprang up, of which there was neither sign nor likelihood, there would be no landing on Luala tonight.

An hour till sunset—and the sun was still merciless in its blazing rays. It would be a relief when it went down—and a relief not only on account of the heat. It had been a day of abomination aboard the schooner, the worst of all the four; a day that must have been one of awful nakedness for Verna. At no time since leaving Singapore had there ever been anything but the merest pretense of discipline; but today, both because of inactivity and the proximity of Luala that was to satisfy the dreams of greed and gold of those aboard, even the pretense was no more. From the first, Java Dick had not drawn a sober breath; today he was a sotted brute, mouthing and bawling coarse oaths, scarcely able to stand upon his feet. From the first, there had never been any regular watches kept, for the crew had been more arduously employed in stinking up their quarters with opium, and, so that some were left to sail the vessel, it had mattered nothing to Chen-shu if the rest lay senseless in their bunks; today there was no sailing to be done, only Luala to stare at with rapacious eyes through the heat haze—and to their drugs they too had added drink, and the decks had been the scene of unlicensed orgies and brawls in which knives had more than once played a part—and this was still going on, though in a lesser degree, for here and there a sprawled figure bespoke the fact that some were already in a state of stupor. Even Chen-shu who up to now had shown no signs of excessive dissipation, was becoming less abstemious, the secret lust within him perhaps too great to overcome in the face of idleness and a unanimous example. An hour ago when Chen-shu had stood nearby, there had been a looseness about the man's lips, a dullness in his eyes, that not only told their own story, but made Chen-shu even more repulsive in appearance than usual, if that were possible. Pray God, the night hide these sights from Verna! Pray God, the darkness bring an end to them!

He raised his head suddenly at the sound of Java Dick's voice. Java Dick and Chen-shu were standing over the prostrate form of Mindar Singh along the deck there. The words reached Bob Kingsley distinctly.

"He doesn't look like he was going to last!" proclaimed Java Dick sententiously; and then, with a drunken leer: "And him almost in sight of that there treasure he was setting his heart on seeing. Too bad there weren't no vind today so's we could have got there before he croaked and he could 'ave died happy! Too bad we're stuck 'out here and can't move. Gawd, ain't it tough!"

And then as though born out of sudden, ugly inspiration, Chen-shu smiled wickedly.

"Your words, O Java Dick, have fallen upon compassionate ears! he answered. "That which one who is near death so greatly desires, he should be assisted to attain; and while yet a little strength remains to him how better could he use it than in the hope that, by means of his last exertions, he may yet be in time to satisfy with his eagerly straining eyes the craving of his soul? And so it shall be done, and what aid we can give him shall be freely his."

Bob Kingsley stared along the deck, his lip suddenly tightened. Java Dick was blinking owlishly, and lurching unsteadily upon his feet; Chen-shu was calling shrilly, giving rapid orders in Chinese to the crew. What devil's play was the man up to now?

CHAPTER LIV.

A HALF dozen of the crew, as though revivified by some pleasing prospect, responded with amazing alacrity, and, suddenly shrieking with laughter, ran to obey their leader's commands; others, aroused by the noisy activity from a semi-comatose condition, shuffled and staggered in Chen-shu's direction. And then Bob Kingsley, watching, saw a rope made fast to the schooner's boat, the boat launched and Mindar Singh hoisted over the rail and dropped sprawling into it.

A flush of anger darkened Bob Kingsley's face at this act of wanton brutality. But that was not the end of it, of course! What was to come next? Some new scheme of torture, he knew, devised by Chen-shu—but what? He had not long to wait for the answer. The rope from the boat's stern, some 15 feet in length, was made fast under the schooner's bow, and, while four of the schooner's crew, armed with whips with long, knotted lashes, swarmed out upon the bowsprit over the boat, Chen-shu called mockingly from the forecastle head to Mindar Singh.

"Row, Mindar Singh!" he said. "That which you desire is even now in sight. It shall not be said that because the wind hath failed us, we have failed you. Point the boat toward the land, Mindar Singh, for what you have sought so eagerly is there; but go quickly for the darkness will soon be upon us."

"The Law Claims No One Guilty, Until They Are Proven Otherwise"

CHAPTER XLVI.

MRS. HAIDEN came down next morning to find Emily waiting with her hat on.

"I wanted to talk with you, Frances. You see maybe you'll not care about having me here now. I wouldn't bring you disgrace."

Frances moved over, in her solid way, and took the little felt hat from the fair head. Then she sat down, her stained fingers around one small, cold hand.

"You have done something you're ashamed of, Emily?"

"Oh, no! It's only—"

"Then, my dear, no disgrace can touch others through you. I'll listen if you have something to tell me, but it isn't necessary."

Emily cried then. Rather a good thing for her, the tears that fell, washing away some of the fear, quieting the turmoil a little. Frances lighted a cigaret and smoked thoughtfully; when the girl wiped her eyes and put her handkerchief away she said, "I expect you'll feel better now. Nothing like a good cry for clearing the air."

She showed no curiosity; seemed, indeed, quite careless of confidences. Even in her trouble Emily marveled at this.

Later she was to know that indifference for a live and let live attitude developing, however slowly in womankind largely through those who, like Frances, have worked into interests and aims high above old-fashioned pettiness.

Nevertheless she told about Kitten's connection with the Wickert affair. She told about the officers coming to the house and how Marty had taken up her sister's defense. She even told, wonderingly, how Kent had prevented old Gade making her a witness at the inquest.

"Humph! Why didn't you go and see Rossiter?"

"But he's against us, Frances, Marty said—"

"Marty! Think you could drive my car? Of course you can. Take it and run over to Novel City to the courthouse. And remember the law is never against an innocent person."

"What can I tell him? I don't see—"

"He'll do the talking, I dare say."

So Emily drove the seven miles to Novel City and parked under the great trees which border the courthouse lawn. She went slowly, fearfully, up the walk to the old brick building and through crumbling hallways to the door marked "District Attorney."

She didn't know quite what to do. And while she stood there in a mounting agitation Kent came striding briskly through the corridor.

He didn't see her at first. Then she moved and the light from a high window fell upon her face. He stopped, and the blue eyes seemed to go through and through her: she had a dismal feeling that she would cry.

"It's little Emily!" His hand was out and he was smiling. "You came to see me?"

"Yes. I thought—well—"

He led the way to his private office and she crept along. There was a big, leather chair by a desk and he turned it a bit so the sun would be at her back. But when he saw her brimming eyes he turned abruptly, moving some papers on the desk.

A tremor kept running over her shoulders, up one arm and down the other; she brought her hands together to steady herself. She caught typewritten lines on one of the papers: "The People Against John Blair" . . .

That's the way it would read, she thought: "The People Against Kathryn Day." All the people of the state of New York against Kitten. Everybody, the high and the lowly, the River Road and The Hill, all with cold faces and accusing fingers pointing at a little, scared kid.

The image seared into her brain. "Oh, you'd do this?" she cried. "Put all the people against my little sister? You represent them—stand for the people? You'd make them call her guilty because you'd say she is guilty? You'd do this—put murder on her?"

"Emily—" His voice was taut. He went to the next room bringing back a glass of water. Her hands shook so that the water spilled and he held it for her to drink.

"You don't understand," he went on, gently. "The law claims no one guilty. She is innocent until proved otherwise. Don't you see?"

Leaning forward toward her there, so earnest, so filled with distress; hair tumbled a bit as it used to be when he came from a football practise. A piercing memory of the old days caught her; Kent bending across the aisle to drop a note on her desk; Kent laughing down at her under the elm.

Hard to feel any doubt of him; incredible that she should wonder if he could be like those others she had heard of, prosecutors who tried to prove innocent persons guilty of crimes.

"I have to handle this case, Emily. I'd save you if I could."

She believed that. Nothing but truth in his face, in the blue eyes looking at her so kindly, with such pity.

"If you'd work with me, Emily?"

"What can I do?"

"Your sister told about a woman coming to the Inn?"

"I heard only what she said before the coroner. It was the first—you see, I didn't know she was friendly with Wickert."

He was marking little squares on the desk blotter and he glanced at her quickly. "Hard for you. I had no idea—didn't guess she was your sister until. . . . Could you get her to tell more about the woman? We've no trace yet. Could you help me find her?"

"You believed it then? You did believe? Mr. Gade doubted—I will do that. Of course."

She left him, feeling vaguely comforted. Frances had been right; it was the thing for her to see him. How fine he was! She wouldn't doubt any more. Marty had his own reasons for helping Kitten, but Kent had the best reason of all. He would help because it was the square thing to do. Kent, couldn't but help even if he wished otherwise!

HELPING ICE FUND AIDS WORKERS

How many times one hears a mother or father say, "We are glad to have our boys and girls take part in Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund benefits. They give the youngsters something to do, keep them out of mischief and develop initiative and self-confidence."

It is astonishing how much fun boys and girls can find in holding these various benefits. Even the very busiest of them will take time away from play to plan a lemonade stand and help sell drinks to thirsty passersby, or will hunt up the wherewithal to have a lawn fete, or devise costumes for a show.

Such activity keeps them out of mischief; it even wards off quarreling, for in their interest in a common cause, small bickerings are forgotten and the one idea in the minds of a group seems to be to get money for the babies who need it so badly. And as for developing initiative and self-confidence—show us anything much better.

A benefit that has the smallest sort of beginning is bound to grow in size and scope and, with a little thought, will exceed in results the dreams of its most sanguine young planner. Money is handled, change made and an unsuspected business ability brought to light that means the beginning of assurance in oneself.

The fund today totals $613.01.

COOLIDGE TO CAMPAIGN FOR HOOVER

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

CEDAR ISLAND LODGE, Wis., July 17.—Herbert Hoover was determined today to base his drive for the presidency on the two great issues of Republican prosperity and competent governmental management as evidenced in the Coolidge administration.

This was the principal development of the Republican nominee's conference with President Coolidge at the Summer White House. These issues had previously received the endorsement of Vice President Charles G. Dawes and of many high Republican leaders who saw the nominee before he left Washington.

Hoover will emphasize these two issues in his speech of acceptance, to be delivered August 11 at Leland Stanford University in Palo Alto, Cal. They will be stressed, too, by party spokesmen all over the country and a great army of Republican orators who will invade every hamlet and town, once the campaign gets under way.

COOLIDGE TO SPEAK

The President himself will take an active part in the campaign, making at least two political speeches in the heat of the campaign. He was said to have given this assurance personally to Hoover. One of the President's addresses will be delivered in Boston, it was reliably reported, while another probably will be made in New York City.

The Republican nominee and Mrs. Hoover were the house guests of the President and Mrs. Coolidge at the Summer White House since yesterday morning. The Hoovers will leave tonight, to resume their westward journey to Palo Alto. The nominee will rejoin his train at Duluth, motoring there from the presidential lodge.

GO FISHING

Hoover won himself a brief vacation by visiting the President, as Mr. Coolidge took the nominee fishing. They spent yesterday afternoon angling in the quiet waters of the Brule, a rural stream that encircles the presidential lodge.

A formal announcement by Everett Sanders, secretary to the President, declared Hoover and Coolidge had each caught eight fish. Sanders, however, indicated that he had not counted either's catch. At first he told newspapermen the two noted Republican anglers had caught "16 or 17 fish, equally divided." When a wag asked him whether each had caught "eight and a half fish" Sanders reduced the total to 16. It was whispered around, though, that Hoover had proved a better fisherman than the President, having had much more experience.

CLAIM WISCONSIN

The Republican nominee was well pleased with his visit to the President. The 1,000-mile detour from his transcontinental trip allowed him to visit Wisconsin, a state which has been classed by some of the advisers as "doubtful," due to the prohibition issue. In Washigton, the Republican nominee was told that Gov. Alfred E. Smith, his rival, would carry the state on the anti-prohibition issue unless heroic measures were taken to hold it in line. Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman and Walter J. Kohler, a Hoover leader, however declared the state will go Republican by its usual majority.

The "fly in the ointment," however, will be the attitude of Senator Robert M. La Follette, youthful insurgent. "Young Bob" already has attacked both Hoover and the Republican platform. He is a pronounced "wet." Should he publicly bolt the Republican ticket and endorse Smith, the result here would be in doubt until the last ballot was counted.

By his visit to Wisconsin, his appearances before Wisconsin crowds and his participation in a reception in Superior, Hoover has tended to counteract the possibility of such a bolt.

A very light program faced Hoover today. He planned to accompany the President from the lodge to Superior for the executive's semi-weekly conference with newspaper men. After that, they probably will go fishing again until Hoover has to leave for his train.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

By HAVEY J. BOYLE

A PLEASANT drive of three hours and a half is the road from Pittsburgh to Conneaut Lake. After you strike the Butler road you follow your nose to Slippery Rock, where you make a right turn and continue on to Harrisville, where you make a left turn, and the rest of the way is easy. The reason we know now that you make a left turn at Harrisville is because we didn't make it one day and consequently were a little surprised to wind up in Franklin, Pa. We corrected this the next time we made the trip by aiming for Franklin and landed in Conneaut. This is what is known as the Ben Turpin style of driving and is as good as any.

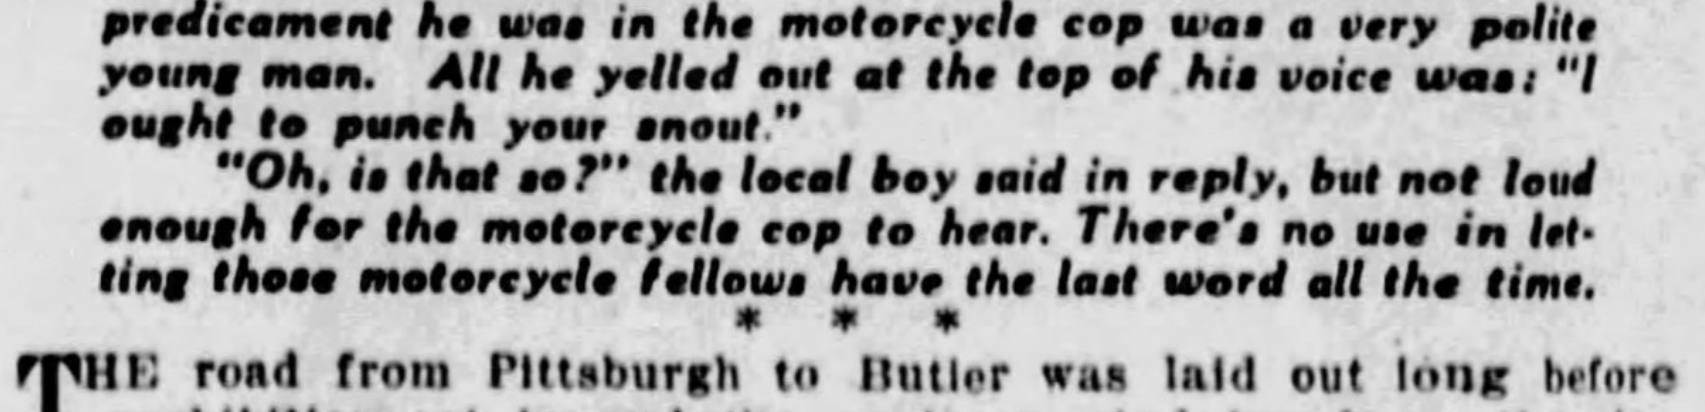
Speaking of driving, we are reminded of a very unfortunate incident the other day in Wylie avenue, near Sixth. A local boy had his machine a little too close to a turn in the car tracks and so as to accommodate a street car that desired to make the turn the local boy in quection backed his car. There followed an insistent horn, which was not the horn of an automobile nor yet that of a fish-monger.

The local boy stopped, looked back carefully, and discovering nothing, backed up a little more. The strange little horn again sounded But seeing nothing once more the local boy again moved back. By that time all doubt concerning the unusual situation was removed. It appeared that directly in back of the local boy's machine was a very indignant motorcycle policeman who all but got run over. Considering the predicament he was in the motorcycle cop was a very polite young man. All he yelled out at the top of his voice was: "I ought to punch your snout."



"Oh, is that so?" the local boy said in reply, but not loud enough for the motorcycle cop to hear. There's no use in letting those motorcycle fellows have the last word all the time.

THE road from Pittsburgh to Butler was laid out long before prohibition set in and the engineers, judging from the zigzag course, were not averse to taking a drink while doing their work. There are more curves between Pittsburgh and Butler than are to be found in a series with the New York Giants.

This, by the way, is a pretty good time to recall that this column picked Bill McKechnie's St. Louis Cardinals to win the National League pennant. A little later we may want to forget the prediction, but right now we can't help getting a little bit of fun out of it.

SKYWARD

by Commander Richard E. Byrd

CHAPTER XVI.

I RETURNED to the States on the battleship Olympia which carried the remains of the Unknown Soldier.

I was about to be demoted along with the rest of my class from lieutenant commander to lieutenant (which ranks with captain in the Army). The promotion we had gotten during the war was only temporary.

I felt that I could continue with air expeditions with less handicap if I were not subjected to military orders. So I wrote an official letter requesting that I be placed on inactive duty.

Admiral Moffett did not approve it and the Personnel Bureau returned the letter to me without comment (as by law my request would have to be granted), stating that there was some more liaison work with Congress necessary and asked me to hold up my request for retirement until that work was done.

Of course I withdrew my request for inactive duty and I went to the bat again on the Hill.

During this last battle on Capitol Hill I had been urging the Bureau of Aeronautics to establish some aviation reserve stations throughout the country so we could keep on tap some of the fine aviators whom we had developed during the war.

"But there isn't any money for such station," I was told again and again by the Chief.

"Build them without money," said I on the spur of the moment.

"All right, you do it," came the prompt retort.

Twenty-four hours later I had orders to establish a reserve air station at Squantum, Mass.

I was given nothing but orders; no money, no men, no instructions. I think the Admiral had a quiet laugh to himself over my predicament when I left Washington.

Next I got in touch with all the war aviators I could locate. They were enthusiastic beyond my highest expectations.

Erects Air Station

By summer we were able to put the station into commission, thanks to the reserves. It was a hand-to-mouth proposition in a good many ways.

From this start there have grown up reserve stations at Rockaway, L. I., and Sand Point, Wash. After courses at these places students are sent for advanced work to the regular big stations at Hampton Roads, Va., and San Diego, Cal.

Then when Congress met again I went before the Naval Affairs Committee and asked for enough money properly to operate the stations, which was readily granted.

Soon after New Year's Day, 1924, I received telegraphic orders from Washington to report to the Navy Department in connection with a proposed flight of the dirigible Shenandoah, across the Arctic Ocean, from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Spitzbergen.

This route would take the big airship directly across the North Pole. My job was to assist Admiral Moffett in preparation for the expedition.

But just as we had the party well under way, the President, without explanation, called the whole project to a halt.

I was promoted by special act of Congress to Lieutenant-Commander—not for any spectacular feat but on my general record.

I could accomplish more as a Lieutenant-Commander than as a Lieutenant. I acted at once. My eyes were on the North Pole.

I joined forces with Capt. Bartlett and at once began to plan a private Arctic air expedition. The fact that there still remained about 1,000,000 square miles of unknown area north of the Arctic Circle seemed to justify a serious effort at Arctic exploration by air.

I succeeded in securing the promise of $15,000 from Edsel Ford, and a like amount from John D. Rockefeller, Jr., while Capt. Bartlett scraped up $10,000 from another source.

We found that Donald B. MacMillan had asked the Navy for a plane. His letter to the Navy Department said that he planned to do some flying around the south and western part of Greenland. As our idea was to use the northwestern corner, Etah, as a base and seek for land out in the Polar Sea I believed there would be no conflict of interests.

The Navy Department insisted that we join forces. MacMillan was to direct his expedition, with me commander of the naval unit which was to do the flying. He had the schooner Bowdoin, the naval unit was on the steamer Peary.

I was allowed two pilots in addition to myself, Lieut. Schur and Chief Warrant Officer Reber, very fine pilots, and had the pick of the whole Navy for mechanics.

It was in this group that I discovered Floyd Bennett, who afterward flew to the North Pole with me.

We left Wiscasset, Maine, on June 20, 1925. After an uneventful voyage of 3,000 miles, we reached, on August 1, Etah, North Greenland, the home of the northernmost Eskimo tribe in the world.

At 5:30 a. m., August 2, the morning after the Peary reached Etah, the eight officers and men comprising the Naval Aviation Unit started to work.

Working in the open on the delicate parts with bare hands, and at times exposed to snow squalls, my men got the wings and disassembled planes to the beach, erected them and we flew them by August 4.

Severe Gales

As the beach proved entirely too small and rough, we moored the planes out to buoys which were dropped several hundred feet offshore. We thereafter operated entirely from the water.

We selected Etah to fly from because it is the nearest accessible harbor to the area in the polar seas we wanted to reach. For some reason the harbor is free enough of ice to be able with care to take off the plane without striking a hunk of it.

Some of the gales which the planes had to ride out in the harbor were so severe that our anchors which ordinarily would have held planes twice the size of the amphibians, dragged badly and it finally became necessary to keep the planes most of the time tied up astern of the Bowdoin and the Peary.

We spent August 5 making radio and full-load tests As we found that, with the load of food, rifles, ammunition, boat, etc., stowed in the tail, the plane was thrown out of balance, we spent the 6th taking a 33-gallon emergency gasoline tank out of the bow to make room for stowing the gear.

Our first reconnaissance flight was to Cape Sabine, which lay on our proposed course toward the Polar Sea, 30 miles from Etah. We found that the ice began several miles north of Etah, and covered all the water to the northward as far as we could see. We flew, hoping to find the ice smooth enough to land on, but it was rough and corrugated, and generally in such condition that landing upon it would have been as disastrous as landing among large rocks.

We realized that the ice-landing skis which we had brought to use in place of wheels would be of no use to us under such conditions.

In all the hundreds of square miles of ice over which we flew later on, both land and sea, we did not see a single place on the ice where a landing could be made without disaster!

At 4:00 a. m. on the 8th, during a gale, the NA-3, which was tied up to an anchored buoy, barely missed destruction from a drifting iceberg. As later she began to drag anchor we finally had to tie her up astern of the Bowdoin. The bad weather persisted until 7:00 p. m., when it abated. I immediately gave orders to prepare for our first long flight into Ellesmere Island to attempt to put down an advance base, as the distance we should have to go was such that we should have to advance by bases.

We left Etah Harbor at 9:10 p. m. We set a course for Cannon Fjord, which lies on a line from Etah through Cape Thomas Hubbard on the Polar Sea.

At last we were to find out whether or not we could navigate a plane where the north magnetic pole is on one side, off to the southward, and the North Pole is on the other side, and where the force of the earth's magnetism acting on the compass needle is very weak I noted immediately that the steering compass did not move at all, but pointed east all the time. Fortunately we had provided a more sensitive instrument which we called the navigator's compass. It began to oscilate slowly at first, but after we had steered a steady course for a while it finally settled down.

When we reached Cape Sabine we took a bearing on two points 30 miles apart, the direction of which Peary had established, and found that in addition to the 103 degrees of error caused by our being north of the magnetic pole, there was an additional and unexpected error of 30 degrees, an unheard of deviation. (Deviation is that error caused by local disturbance, such as metal in the plane.)

When we wanted to fly north by compass the compass needle pointed nearer south than north. A curious sensation indeed!

As we flew over Smith Sound, we could see to the north at a glance the ice-packed area Peary and Bartlett had such a difficult time getting through with the Roosevelt in 1908.

MEN DROP IN PLANTS AFTER EATING PIE

International News Service.

BOSTON, July 17.—Chemists and physicians today were engaged in an examination and analysis of food from a large chain restaurant system in an effort to discover the source of food poisoning of more than 150 persons, including 60 employes of the Ford Motor Company's assembling plant in Somerville.

While hospitals, filled with victims in great pain, reported that only one patient was in a serious way, the chemical and medical experts of the state, city and restaurant system were first looking into samples of chocolate cream pie eaten from box lunches by all the victims.

The chocolate cream pie ingredients—milk, eggs, flour and chocolate—were being closely examined.

Seventy-two persons were under treatment in five Boston hospitals, having suffered a night of pain. At least 75 more were at their homes, having been treated at hospitals or by family physicians.

The first report of the city-wide poisoning came late yesterday afternoon when workmen suddenly began to collapse in the Ford plant in Somerville.

After more than 60 Ford company workers had been taken to hospitals, word came from Charlestown that workers in the Revere Sugar Refinery Company's plant and the S. M. Howes Company's plant had been stricken.

An evening checkup of hospitals of Boston disclosed that scores of others had been treated for poisoning from various sections of the city and that between 150 and 200 persons had been stricken.

Discovery was made that all the victims had partaken of box lunches consisting of ham, cheese, jelly and corned beef sandwiches, a fig bar, chocolate cream pie, an apple and a pear. Milk and coffee were also served. Recalling the septic sore throat epidemic at Lee, in the Berkshire Hills, where more than 600 were made sick by infected milk and 28 died, authorities were at first inclined to lay the wholesale poisoning on the milk. Hospital physicians reached the conclusion that the germ was in the pie.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

AND STILL WE LOVE THEM

THREE things which every man appears to think were made just to be broken are Christmas toys, traffic laws and wedding vows.

A man spends half his life in scraping something off his face; a woman spends half of hers in putting something on her face.

It's a terrible shock to wake up every other morning, these days, and discover that what you've been priding yourself on as a virtue was nothing but the hangover from a mid-Victorian complex.

HELEN ROWLAND

All modern men seem to be divided into two classes—Galahads and Don Juans. Great lovers, like Lancelot, Abelard and Marc Anthony, who were neither woman-haters nor woman-chasers, are to be found only in history and the movies.

These small-time lovers don't park on any one woman's doorstep long enough to get a ticket. It's kiss as you go—and go fast.

In the average man's imagination, woman's chief indoor sport is sitting at home, waiting to forgive him.

A woman seldom has time to join a "Don't Worry Club," unless she has a hard-working husband somewhere downtown to do the worrying for her.

Most of these ideally happy old couples who have lived to celebrate their golden weddings never borrowed each other's cigarets, took turns driving the car or were partners in a bridge game.

Nothing so quickly gives a man "that sickish feeling" as to discove that a girl is just waiting to be kissed when he has spent hours trying to find the most effective way to "win her."

Now that women have gotten used to the blast of a motor-horn as "the call of love," it won't be long before we'll be listening eagerly for the explosion of a bomb from an airplane as the tender signal.

Miss Lincoln Wishes Her Posing Kept Secret

LILLIAN'S prophecy as to the speed with which Dicky's sketches of Eleanor Lincoln would be completed was carried out to the last word on Friday at noon, the day before the beach picnic. We knew that Philip Veritzen was coming from New York on the noon train, and neither Lillian nor I were surprised to see Dicky motor into the yard shortly before 12 o'clock.

"Better tell Katie to put on an extra plate," Lillian said with a grin as she saw him come in. "She'll need to cook more food, too. If ever I saw a lad who's sitting on the top of the world, it's the one moseying toward us."

I did not need to go to Katie, however. My little maid's voice sounded excitedly through the window of the living-room back of us.

"Ees Meester Graham going eat by us?" she demanded. "I shoost see heem drive in."

"I'll ask him," I told her, and as Dicky reached the steps I spoke to him in the carefully cordial manner which we both use in the presence of other people.

"Oh, Dickie! Katie wishes to know if you're going to be here for lunch."

"I'll radio the ships at sea I am," he said, and then as he caught sight of Katie's eager face looking through the window, he waved his hand at her.

"Hello! Katie!" he greeted her, grinning. "Open another can of beans. I'm starved."

"Me, I open no cans," Katie declared loftily. "I feed you sometings you like in two shakes of leetle lamb's tail."

She hurried off and Dicky took possession of the couch hammock.

"If that mythical sheep of Katie's were real," he said lazily, "it's tail would be worn off by shaking. But she's a good scout, if she is a roughneck, and I'll bet she'll have something extra scrumptious for luncheon."

"That will be a bet with no takers, allee samee some others I know of," Lillian retorted, with a tiny flicker of her eyes toward me. "You may not be a hero to most people, but to Katie, 'wherever you sit is the head of the table.'"

"Thanks for the wheel-barrow ride," he retorted, and then he sat up suddenly as if he had just thought of something he wished to tell us. But I knew someway that he had planned thus to talk to us together, in order to avoid a possible interview with me alone.

"Look here," he said, "how many people besides you two know that I have been sketching Eleanor Lincoln?"

Lillian laughed maliciously.

"Everybody within reach of Jerry Ticer's voice, I imagine," she said. "He was up here the other day bellowing his enjoyment of your various activities at The Larches for all the world to hear."

Dicky frowned angrily.

"I'll wring that lad's neck some day," he snapped. "But that doesn't help now. We've got to do a quick muzzling stunt."

"I suppose before dear old Phil gets off the train," Lillian said demurely.

Dicky stared at her in amazement.

"How do you know?" he asked.

"Special broadcast from the powers of darkness," she told him. "They mike me regularly. But go ahead, spill what's got to be shunted under cover and why."

"You evidently don't need to be told," Dicky said sulkingly, "but I'll tell you anyway. Miss Lincoln doesn't want anybody, especially Mr. Veritzen, to know that she has posed for those sketches of mine."

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Wednesday, July 18

THIS day, according to the astrological science, may bring forth a notable demonstration of the paradox. While there may be a sudden visitation of very vital opportunities and prospects, following close upon the definie removal of some long thwarting and crystallized state of affairs; yet certain hazards accompany the excellent prospects. Precipitancy, turbulence and extravagance of behavior, as well as financially, may nullify these decided advantages. Act with restraint.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of important developments, with sudden openings following upon stubborn obstacles removed. But these excellent prospects may be nullified if the predisposition to rash and impulsive moves, as well as to financial speculation or snap judgments be indulged. Good management may be prolific of decided benefits and probable radical change of environment and interests.

A child born on this day may be skillful and ingenious, but it may need to learn self-control and frugality.

Astrology reveals the blending of the finite with the Infinite.—ADA MUIR.

MANNERS change. Fashions, amusements, and the face of the daily papers. But not Time himself, and some of his ancient jokes and beliefs. What the little girl in four starched petticoats was taught was polite she can ignore now, and had better, if she wants to be Palm Beach and Park avenue. And fashions. Grown women and old ladies wear little girl's—what WAS little girl's—slip-over-your-head-to-your-knees-with-sash frocks. Amusements range from the ancient one of following a little white ball around a beautiful green landscape at your leisure to rocketing along a ballroom-floor beach at almost three hundred miles an hour and flying the oceans as a passenger. And the face of the daily paper changes fast enough even to startle the present speedy times.

But jokes and beliefs. Some of them that are marching along are the very same who marched in the Victorian, and perhaps even in the medieval days.

One of them had to do with gossips. Gossips were always feminine gender and never young. But we're towing that one out to sea, putting it in the ragbag, the scrap-pile. We've walked up close to it and found it a scarecrow, a coat on a stick with hay for stuffing.

Sit behind two young gentlemen on the red velvet seat of a commuters' train and hear them discuss a party and the girls at it. At the same time your ears will flush in surprise at their frankness, you will marvel at their genius for old-fashioned, dyed-in-the-wool gossip. For conveying of personal tittle-tattle. Listen at the gabble of young girls when they convene like a tree full of young magpies. And you will say: "The gossips may be feminine if you insist, but they are certainly not in mittens and bonnets."

Take note how half the news you get, you wife who stays at home most of the day, and there are myriads of us who do, comes through your chatty husband when he enjoys his iced melon and coffee in the sun parlor while "Drifting and Dreaming" plays. Listen in at a group of dinner-jacketed older brothers on the country club veranda. And you will say to both the PARROT and the two-some of chubby middle-aged LADY and the ONE not so chubby who are savoring personalities at a tiny table over their tea.

"Marry come up! YOU are not to bear the title of 'gossip' and 'talker' all alone. Masculine faces and younger ones can do it with just the same facial expression and the same flair of voice as you!"

Feeding the Victims of Bowel Disorders

IN the face of serious illness, the average man becomes meek and admittedly helpless. As he gazes upon the suffering and weakness of the patient, he realizes how little he knows of things which bring comfort and help to restore health.

Most of us know little enough about how to choose our own food. A man may know everything else and yet not know what he really ought to eat. If called upon to make up a diet for a sick person, he would throw up his hands in surrender.

Suppose you were dealing with a person past middle life, suffering a violent bowel disturbance: What would you advise?

To have regular intestinal action, a healthy person must eat some foods which contain fibre. Every farmer gives his animals "roughage," the chief source of which is hay. It serves to supply the brush-like materials which sweep the lining of the intestines and assist in its cleansing. Roughage is equally important to the human animal. The brushing of the walls serves to stimulate the muscular coats of the intestine, producing the wave-like contractions which carry the waste substances onward and outward.

In "bowel complaint," the lining of the intestine becomes congested. It may become actually inflamed and sometimes ulcerated. The tissues grow more and more sensitive. Then food which contains the least possible amount of fiber may have just enough to raise havoc with the disturbed mucous lining.

On this account it is a great mistake, in bowel trouble, to eat any kind of tough, fibrous, or otherwise indigestible food. It is better to take no food at all for a whole day. If the bowels are "running off," it helps control the trouble to omit food entirely.

When the pain and fever lessen, simple feedings may be begun. Bear in mind one rule—never give any unstrained food to the victim of bowel disturbance, whether acute or chronic. Every fruit, vegetable and cereal should be run through a fine-meshed sieve. This removes husks, fiber and other substances which would irritate and further inflame the bowel lining.

Almost any fruit or vegetable can be given if it is treated in this manner. During the period of recovery, when appetite is fitful, it will make it a lot easier to nourish the patient if there is a variety from which to select the food. Straining the food makes it possible to have that variety.

Frequent feeding of very small meals is better than forcing the jaded appetite. With an assortment of broths, gruels, vegetables and fruits, you will coax the palate and provide the nourishment essential to recovery.

Why Folks Get Fat

and how they lose it

Science, some years ago, found a cause of excess fat which is easy to correct. Scientists proved it on thousands of test animals, then on human beings. The results were reported in medical journals, and the use of this method has spread the world over.

Then a great medical laboratory embodied this method in Marmola prescription tablets. They have now been used for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. The use has grown to vast proportions through users telling others.

The results are seen in every circle. Slenderness prevails. Excess fat is much less common than it was. Now physicians everywhere are prescribing for obesity the chief factor in Marmola.

Abnormal exercise or diet is not required, not advised. One simply takes four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

The prescription is not secret. A book in every box gives the formula complete. It explains the results so you may know they are natural and helpful. Learn how easy it is to get these results if you need them. New beauty, new health and vitality come when the fat departs.

Few things bring more joys to men and women than reduction by Marmola.

Go get a box and watch effects. You will be delighted.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

You can neutralize this acid instantly, protect the inflamed stomach lining and insure natural, healthy digestion if you take Bi-nesia. Four or five tablets or a teaspoonful of the powder are guaranteed to give relief from distress, no matter how severe, in less than five minutes. My Bleach for Tan and Freckles

"I continue my photographic posing all through the summer," says Miss Emily Boyle, noted New York camera model, "and being inclined to tan and freckle, I have to have a bleach that will keep my skin white and flawless and at the same time is harmless.

"For my bleach I use no ready-made preparation, but simply get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a quarter pint of a perfectly marvelous bleach for a few cents. Rubbed into the face, neck and arms, it bleaches away tan and freckles and makes any dark, sallow or discolored skin beautifully clear and white. This is the bleach all the studio models learn about soon after they begin posing. No ready-to-use preparation can equal it, because, for one reason, you use it while it is still fresh."

TEN HERBS ENDED HIS RHEUMATISM

Local Elderly Man Also Rid of Stomach Trouble He Had for Ten Long Years.

"Ten Herbs not only ended my rheumatism, but also gave me relief from stomach trouble and constipation, with which I had been troubled the last ten years," was the statement of Mr. Frederick Volmer, 1322 Jeffers Street, Sheraden,

MR. FREDERICK VOLMER

Pa., (part of Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this popular herbal compound.

"Before using Ten Herbs, I tried about everything under the sun for my bowels, but got only temporary relief," continued Mr. Volmer, who is 64 years old, and a printer. "Not getting rid of waste matter caused my whole system to become clogged. My liver became disordered, and when I stooped over everything got black in front of me. I had bilious attacks and dizzy spells. My kidneys did not work properly, for uric acid formed and rheumatism developed in my neck and shoulders until I could hardly raise my arms above my head. I was told I had neuritis. Food would lie in my stomach and sour and ferment. Gas would form and work up around my heart—I had many a scare, for at times I feared every breath would be my last. I finally became very weak and rundown.

"Now, thanks to Ten Herbs, all these conditions have been changed. My bowels are regular, and my liver and kidneys are working properly—no more biliousness or dizzy spells. Pains across my back and neuritis are things of the past. I have a better appetite, and can enjoy meals without fear of misery afterwards. No more gas, bloating or palpitation. My nerves are stronger, and I get good restful sleep, instead of rolling and tossing by the hour. I can work all day long without having that exhausted feeling. I am only too glad to endorse Ten Herbs to the public."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

PAUL WANER'S field day on the offensive did much to reduce the gap that separates the kingpin hitter of last season from the Rajah. Hornsby's only safety was a lucky single that trickled through the spot vacated by Sparky Adams when the little infielder headed toward second to cover on a hit-and-run play.

Hornsby still holds a big advantage over Paul Waner who was a bit slow in getting under way this year. The season has two and one-half months to run, however, and Paul should harvest a lot of hits in that time.

THE young Pirate's mark of .370 or thereabouts, would, if it were owned by certain players in the league, cause them to think they were having a truly remarkable year. Batting over .350 is an honor that comes to few, but here we have the spectacle of a somewhat disappointed Brother Paul. The rightfielder appears to think that he should bat up around .400. He's a great boy.

At this time last season, Punchem had pounced over 70 or 80 runs and he went past the century mark with many weeks of the season left for paddling more runners over the plate.

FAILURE of other batters on the club to drive in runs in their regular manner has hurt the team along with the slump of the first-string pitchers. Much has been said about the fact that the Pirates have consistently led the league in hitting, but little has been printed regarding the deficit of runs driven in. Runs, not hits, win the ball games.

The Braves are the third of the Eastern teams to reach Pittsburgh, but so far along the invasion the Seaboard fighters have been able to win just one contest in the Oakland Orchard. The Giants took the measure of the Buccos in the opener and then dropped three.

EVERY one of Boots Grantham's four safeties was clicked on the button, and each of P. Waner's safe wallops was a humdinger. These seven blows from two batters that hit together in the batting order just about decided the old ball game.

Frenchy Kremer hearkened back to his good years as he stood off the Tribe like a master. Perhaps he eased up a bit in the ninth when the enemy nicked him for three doubles. He had a seven-run lead as he went into the last round and the little flurry had no especial significance.

IF a Pirate infielder had played two ground balls after the fashion of Hornsby yesterday, you would have heard a lot of wild stories and rumors about breaking training rules and all that sort of stuff.

BUCKNELL COACH DEAD

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—(INS.)—Funeral services were being arranged today for Oscar Lang, baseball and football coach at Bucknell College and former professional athlete, who died of a sudden heart attack while playing tennis late yesterday. Lang was unmarried.

LOUGHRAN WINS BY NARROW MARGIN

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 17.—(AP.)—While rain hovered in the sky and seats and the ring alike sogged under an early downfall, pudgy Pete Latzo, pride of this anthracite mining center, battled with all the viciousness and pride of a kid fighting in his own back yard—but in vain—last night for Tommy Loughran's light heavyweight championship.

Game as his stand was, furious as his gallant attack, the brown skinned youth who once burrowed for coal beside many of the 15,000 spectators was forced to bow for the second time this season to the mastery of the Philadelphia adonis.

By the narrowest of margins was one of the most vicious skirmishes of the outdoor season decided in Loughran's favor after 10 rounds of the kind of milling that had even the spectators, bitter partisans in this all-Pennsylvania struggle, fighting among themselves. The Associated Press score card gave Loughran five rounds with four for the challenger and one even.

LOST FIRST CHANCE

A little over two months ago, Latzo, once the welterweight champion, but now grown to a full-fledged heavyweight, battled Loughran on almost as even terms in a 15-round go in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn. And last night, as then, the gameness and plunging, two-fisted attack of the challenger came within an ace of stripping Loughran of his crown.

With the title in his grasp in the fourth round, Latzo found that he had wasted too much strength in his rushing assault.

Then it was that Loughran, true champion, peered through the blood that poured down his cheeks, took a fresh hold and stabbed out the decision over his closest rival in the 175-pound division. Rallying in the middle rounds, Tom boxed his way to enough of an advantage to hold Pete off again when he stormed the championship citadel with a final desperate rally in the last two rounds.

15,000 SEE BATTLE

It mattered little that Latzo, after letting the next three rounds drift to Tommy with the eighth even, rallied to the call of the miners in the final two sessions, whaled into Loughran with new vigor and again cut his eye and cheek. The effort was too long delayed. The champion had retained his title by the margin of a single round and the coal regions must wait still longer for another champion.

The crowd of approximately 15,000 paid $60,000 to see the show, one of the greatest gates in the history of this section of the country. Promoter Morgan Bird was reported to have paid Loughran $25,000 to defend the crown, while Latzo received $7,500.

Elkins Loses Appeal

S. S. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EN ROUTE TO AMSTERDAM, July 17.—(AP.)—The American Olympic track and field team, as selected after the final trials at Cambridge and Philadelphia, will be entered in the international games at Amsterdam without any additions or subtractions.

This was definitely determined when the Olympic committee rejected an appeal from the New York A. C. that Fait Elkins, all-around athlete, who first gained fame at the University of Nebraska, be included on the American decathion squad.

Elkins was forced out of the final trials in the decathlon when he pulled a tendon in his leg. Feeling that the Indian could not recover in time to compete at Amsterdam, the Olympic selection committee left him off the squad of four which will represent America in the 10-event test at Amsterdam. The team sailed without him, but the New York A. C. entered a protest by radio, declaring that Elkins had recovered and should be included on the team.

Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chairman of the Olympic committee, ordered Elkins to make a test of his fitness in seeral events. If a report on his performances was favorable, MacArthur said, his appeal would be considered.

The Indian made the test Sunday before he sailed for Europe early yesterday. He ran the 100 meters in 12 4-5 seconds and broad-jumped 19 feet 4 inches. In form he has run the dash in a fraction over 11 seconds, and he has broad-jumped better than 23 feet.

Today the team celebrated the birthday of the youngest athlete that ever represented the United States in the Olympic games. Dorothy Poynton, Pasadena fancy diver, arrived at the mature age of 13. Her closest rival is Tommy Mack, 14-year-old coxswain of the Penn A. C pair-oared boat.

FANS STORM AMSTERDAM

AMSTERDAM, July 17.—(AP.)—Although the opening of the main series of Olympic Games is still more than 10 days off, incoming trains and many steamers from abroad already are bringing considerable numbers of persons for the events, including contingents of prospective competitors who will finish training here.

Many thousands of Americans, it is stated, have engaged accommodations and will arrive in the next few days while even larger crowds are expected from Germany.

ROLLER RACE PLANNED

SPEAKING of SPORTS

by HARRY KECK
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS EDITOR

HEENEY'S big chance will come after the tenth round. Tunney will tire of hitting him and trying to hold off his rushes and then Tom will nail him. Heeney is a long-distance fighter and Tunney won't be able to stand the pace in the last five rounds.

That seems to be the latest slant on the impending heavyweight championship affair, judging from the immense amount of so-called expert opinion that is catapulting its way into print in the last few weeks before the battle.

And it's all wet, from our viewpoint. Where do they get that stuff about Tunney being all in and Heeney strong and chipper and full of fight after the tenth round?

ISN'T it a fact that Dempsey just about lasted the 10 rounds in both of his fights with Tunney and that it was generally agreed that Tunney would have put him away in a few more rounds each time? And didn't Tunney knock out Tom Gibbons in the twelfth round and Georges Carpentier in the fifteenth? Those were his most important pre-championship bouts, and in each of them he gradually wore down and weakened his opponent in the first 10 rounds and then polished him off at his pleasure. What, then, is to keep him from doing the same thing to such a stolid and inviting target as Heeney? And how does Heeney figure to stand up under the punishment and be full of zip and the old life from the tenth round on? It just simply isn't being done, old top; it isn't being done.

A LOT of the stuff that trickles out of the training camps before these heavyweight championship fights is mainly the bunk. In most cases the principals could do all of the training necessary in two or three weeks of hard work and might enter the ring better conditioned if they confined their labors to such short periods. But the ballyhoo would suffer, and, as a result, the camp sieges are stretched out over several months to make "news" and excite the fans. It is much the same as the spring training of the major league baseball clubs. The players are in the South or on the West Coast for six weeks before the opening of the season. Frequently they run into cold and rainy weather and wind up with sore arms, aching backs and other infirmities. They would do just as well or, better without training in another climate. But then the papers would not be full of their doings for more than a month before the bell rings, and the fans would not be heated up to the proper pitch to jam the parks for the opening battles. Get the idea? No matter how much you slice it, it's still bologny.

IN THE case of Tunney and Heeney, little, if anything, that is not already known can be learned from visiting their training camps. Tunney's ability is known, and it also is known that he has not gone back to the extent that there need to be any worry on this score; and it also is generally known that Heeney possesses little other than ability to assimilate punishment and keep plodding along. On form, Heeney figures to be outclassed in the fight. Only the fight itself will tell whether or not he is. Watching the men in their training will not give anyone a better line on their chances.

ALL sorts of stories are making their appearance in the grand old ballyhoo for the big fight. Artie McGovern, who has trained Babe Ruth, Johnny Farrell, Gene Sarazen and others and is more or less famous as a conditioner of athletes, doesn't like Tunney's method of dieting while in training. He says he saw Gene consume a whole pint of cold milk out of a pitcher while overheated following a workout the other day and has talked to him about it. Other narratives along these lines are doing their bit to keep the affair before the public, but the ballyhooers have overlooked one of the best bets imaginable, or else they are saving it up for the last few days, and that is speculation on what effect Tunney's knockdown in his second bout with Dempsey, his last time out, at Chicago last September, will have on the champion in the Heeney fight. Reams could be written about the episode of the long count as publicity for this bout—but they still remain to be written.

STALLINGS UNCHANGED

MACON, Ga., July 17.—(AP.)—Hospital authorities reported that the condition of George Stallings, Montreal baseball club owner, who is ill with heart trouble, is unchanged. He spent a "fairly good" night.

Sandlot Gossip

By TOM BIRKS

THE Havana Red Sox will be the attraction at Stowe this evening, opposing Bill Geers' Stowe Civics. The Cubans are going at a good clip having defeated some of the best clubs in the district. Geer is keen on winning this game and will probably send Saltic to the mound.

Tommorw evening Stowe will make the trip to Springdale to meet the Buccaneers. It is reported that Pop and the boys are leaving early this morning to get to the upriver town.

THIS evening at Born playgrounds, the Jimmy Smith Club will hook up with the W. L. Reineckers. Jack Collette is anxious to get this game in the win column. The opening game of the season found the Reineckers meeting the Smiths at the Hill grounds, and in a game that was curtailed by rain the Smiths won. Since that time Collette and his mates have been eager to get another crack at the Greenfielders.

WHAT effect will that trouble between the Civics and the Book Shoe nine last Saturday nave on the second half of the City League? That is a question that the league officials have to consider from every angle without delay. For the smoldering fire that gained fuel in that championship game will not be dampened so easily. It is unfortunate, however, that teams that have won their way to the championship through protests should put on a session like that.

ONE thing is sure, the players of the City League have lost all respect for and have absolutely no confidence in the umpires that are being assigned to the games. The umpires assigned to Saturday's game were not known to anyone but the president of the league, and that game did not get over the first inning. If the umpires selected were the best three in the organization and the players paid little or no heed to them, then new umpires should be used in the second half of the loop's play.

IT is a certainty that it will be impossible for Ahearn to work any games with either Book Shoe or the Civics, since both teams seem to do plenty of kicking in a game. One good thing was that very few fans were on hand to see the contest.

MANAGER DUNSKY of the Smilers, seems confident that with Archer, Fitzgerald and Brand on hand the Smilers are going to make things merry for the rest of the clubs in the second half. This evening the Smilers will play at Wilson Park, and an Wednesday at McKinley Park. Games for Saturday and Sunday abroad are sought. For games, write J. Dunsky, 1711 Patrick street, or call Lafayette 2997-W.

A shaving cream with double-dense lather

—completely lubricates skin, giving smoother shaves. Soothes and heals, too

HERE'S a shaving cream that is absolutely different from any you have ever used Lifebuoy Shaving Cream! It ends tenderface—by removing the cause.

Friction, or the rough scraping of razor over skin is a chief cause of tenderface. The only way to end this friction is by complete lubrication.

Ordinary lather cannot do this—it is too light and frothy. Lifebuoy's healing double-dense lather, however hugs the skin so closely that a thoroughly lubricated shaving surface is formed.

Result—no tugging—no pulling—no burning, no smarting! You get a marvelously clean shave—yet your razor scarcely seems to touch you.

Then, too—Lifebuoy Shaving Cream contains the same antiseptic ingredient as the famous Lifebuoy Health Soap. Keeps skin clear, smooth, healthy—and helps protect against infection. Truly a shaving cream and face lotion in one. Get the big red tube today.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

Hargreaves Big Factor in Pirate Brace—Has Improved Pitchers by Clever Handling. Kremer Wins Two Games in Succession for First Time This Year—Brame Out With Infected Thumb.

WHAT'S the explanation of the big brace on the part of the Pirates that has enabled them to win seven games in a row, three victories more than were contained in their longest previous winning streak?

Charley Hargreaves

The answer, beyond doubt, is improved pitching.

And what's the secret of this improved pitching?

In all fairness, the greater part of the credit must be given to Charley Hargreaves.

Old-timers in baseball were wont to remark: "In trying to pick the winner of any ball game, or in attempting to measure the chances of either team for victory, don't look to see who's pitching; look to see who's catching."

In other words, their dope was that a poor catcher could set at naught the efforts of a good pitcher, but that a good catcher could make the same pitcher hurl at the peak of his form.

THAT applies to the baseball of today just as truly as it did in the bygone, and that's why Hargreaves must not be overlooked as one of the biggest and most important factors in the drive of the Buccaneers.

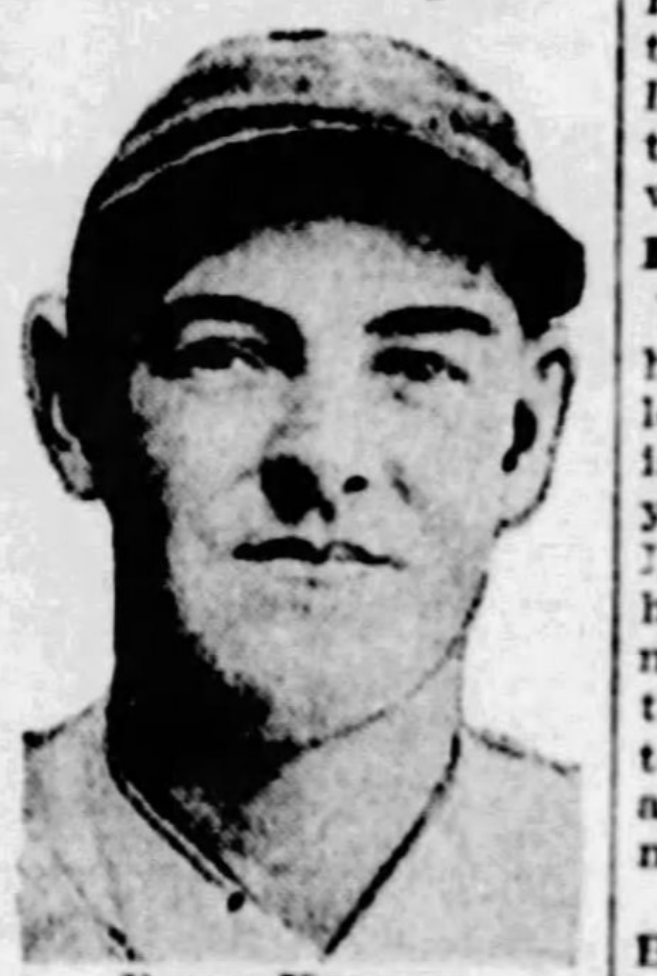
"He looks like a fine receiver, but he can't throw," was the hasty verdict of some of the fans when a few base stealers got away with their stuff while the former Dodger was behind the bat for the Corsairs.

It takes more than rifle-shot throwing to make a high-class masksman. He has got to have a head on his shoulders, he has got to know how to handle pitchers of various types and dispositions in order to get the best results out of them. That kind of catcher will win many ball games for his club, whereas another receiver who is merely a fast and accurate thrower will cause them to be lost through poor judgment in the pinches or through defective handling of the man on the mound.

AS a matter of fact, Hargreaves is not a poor thrower. It must be admitted that in the games he caught here as a member of the Brooklyn team, no faults were discernible in his pegging.

The truth is that Charley has been working under a handicap. The thumb and forefinger of his right hand are still swollen and bruised as the result of being struck with a foul tip some time ago, and it is for this reason that he is temporarily unable to shoot the ball to the bases with his customary speed or without taking half a step backward.

BUT in spite of what he has done or has not done in that branch of his work, and with all due respect to the ability of Johnny Gooch and Earl Smith, Hargreaves has got more out of the Pittsburgh pitchers than any other catcher employed on the club this year. Grimes, it is true, has been pitching ball of the highest order all season, but how did Kremer and Hill regain their form so suddenly? What has caused Fussell to show such improved form since the earlier part of the season, and what has made Brame look like such a vastly better flinger in his second tryout with the 1927 league champions? You need not look beyond the way Hargreaves has handled and coached and guided them for the answer.



Remy Kremer

REMY KREMER appears to have thrived more than any other home pitcher under the handling of the new catcher. For a long time he floundered around and suffered defeat after defeat despite the fact that he was putting his heart in every ball he pitched. But he is finally beginning to look like his old self.

When the Frenchman beat the Phillies last Tuesday, Pirate rooters figured that the victory and the evidence of returning form would do much to restore his confidence and to put him on edge for a strong finish. This was borne out yesterday, when the big right-hander pitched another fine game against the Braves and turned in a second victory. For the first time this season, Kremer has now won two games in succession.

THE return of Kremer and Hill to a winning stride is a fortunate happening for the Bucs, inasmuch as the incapacitation of a new regular has just been added to their long list of unfavorable breaks this season.

The injury to Ervin Brame's pitching hand, suffered when a batted ball struck it in last Wednesday's game against the Quakers, has developed into an infection on the back of the thumb at the second joint. He will be out of commission for a few days at least, even if the infection responds readily to treatment, but Manager Bush hopes to have him ready for a turn in the box before the end of the Brooklyn series Saturday.

ANOTHER tribute to the ability and fairness of the boxing officials of this district was paid when Jock Simco, of McKeesport, was chosen as one of the judges for the world's championship light-heavyweight battle between Tommy Loughran and Pete Latzo in Wilkes-Barre last night, in which Loughran successfully defended his 175-pound crown.

It was desired to appoint judges residing in neutral zones instead of using the regular officials of Wilkes-Barre, which is Latzo's home town, and Commissioner Farrell requested Commissioner Boyle, of Pittsburgh, to appoint Simco from this end of the state, remarking the McKeesporter's work on the occasion of the Canzoneri-Blitman bout in Philadelphia recently had been so satisfactory that he did not hesitate to entrust him with the important duty of judging a world's championship contest.

ALVIN CROWDER remains hard to beat. He experienced a tight squeeze yesterday and had to go 10 innings, but the Browns' sensational pitcher turned the trick and beat Washington for his eleventh victory of the season with only one defeat to mar his slate.

OUR Pirates are not exactly "back to normalcy," but they would not be going after their eighth straight victory this afternoon if they were in anything but a winning stride. The new change that has come over the club in the past 10 days has had the effect of reversing the tone of the Freebooters; a spirit that was low two weeks ago has risen to a point where the enthusiasm is a reminder of the big days of other seasons.

While it also is a fact that the Buccos must win one more game ere they reach the .500 mark the condition of the club as regards the money positions is improving nicely. The Cubs, for instance, in a practical tie for second place, are supposed to be seven and one-half games ahead of the Buccos, yet they have lost only three less games than the Pirates. The gap is explained by the fact that the Bears have played many more contests than the Pirates. Hence, the Bushwhackers have a chance to win these contests and if they can they will do some climbing.

FAR BEHIND CARDS

The Pirates are eleven and one-half games away from the league-leading Cardinals, a condition that is not promising at this time of year. However, it behooves the Buccos to keep on hustling as they have in the last 10 days. There is no telling what can happen; while the team seems to be too far back to overtake the Redbirds they can at least land in one of the money notches.

Carmen Hill is due to take on the Braves this afternoon in the third game of the series. Our two spectacled performers—Hill and Lee Meadows—have not been able to do much this season, but both are expected to help out in the last half of the race. Virgil Barnes may pitch for the Braves.

Remy Kremer gave one of his best slab performances of the season yesterday as the Pirates rode

CHALLENGER TURNS OVER CHANCES IN HIS MIND

Very few persons are giving Tom Heeney, the honest former plumber of Gisborne, New Zealand, much of a chance to defeat Gene Tunney and win the heavyweight championship in their battle at the Yankee Stadium Thursday night of next week, but Tom's been doing a lot of thinking on his own account lately and wondering how that happens to be. He distinctly recalls that poor all-in Jack Dempsey had Gene on the ragged edge of defeat in the seventh round of their return bout at Chicago last September, as shown in the shaded picture above; that Luis Firpo, considered a chump for Dempsey, knocked that worthy out of the ring and almost snatched his title; that Carpentier, a frail light-heavyweight, had Dempsey tottering in the second round; that Bill Brennan was beating Dempsey for 11 rounds; that Tom Gibbons stayed 15 rounds with the man-killer Dempsey at Shelby when he was figured to go two or three rounds at the most; that——. But what's the use of going further? Tom is a fatalist, in a sense, and thinks almost anything may happen when two well-trained men start tossing leather at each other, and so he doesn't care what the fans or critics say or think. He'll do his own thinking, as per above, and his own fighting when the time comes.

BIG MOMENT

For a moment in his title defense bout against Jack Dempsey at Chicago last year, the usually cautious Gene Tunney was caught napping along the ropes and Dempsey, with the spring of a tiger, was on top of him punching away with all he had left with the above result. He floored Tunney and the latter, benefited by a count of 14, came back and finished the fight in good shape. Heeney is no Dempsey as a puncher. Can he grasp opportunity against Tunney as Dempsey did, and, if he does, will he foozle his big chance by making some foolish move as Dempsey did when he wasted time going to the wrong corner? Tom has a lot to think about as he waits for the sound of the gong a little more than a week hence.

JUNIORS TO GET PRIZES

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

TOMORROW night all of the prize winners in The Sun-Telegraph's first annual West Penn amateur junior championship for the William Randolph Hearst Trophy will gather around the festive board in the Fort Pitt Hotel to end the story of the inaugural of the greatest junior golf event ever staged.

At that time, Commissioner E. V. Babcock of Allegheny County will present to Joseph Curto, the skillful little 18-year-old blonde, the William Randolph Hearst trophy for his superb feat in shooting a 68 to capture the high honors in the field as well as the Junior Class, which was open only to boys between 15 and 18 years of age. He also will receive a gold medal and a mid-iron. The Sun-Telegraph started to find a second Bobby Jones, when it opened its guns for its junior tournament, and Curto is pretty close to that. He has been playing golf since he was a mere youngster, and in his sixteenth year he made a place on the Pittsburgh public links team which participated in the National championship at Buffalo. He missed qualifying for this year's team, but will play on the Schenley Park all-star team against an all-star squad of private clubmen on Thursday afternoon.

Commissioner Babcock always has been hearty in his support of open amateur golf—that is, golf for everyone, regardless of whether

Heeney To Quit Night Drill

FAIR HAVEN, N. J., July 17.—(AP.)—There will be no more training for Tom Heeney in the cool of the evening. The challenger for the world's heavyweight championship has decided to abandon the workouts at night. Today he will return to the practice of throwing leather at his sparring boys in the afternoon.

The decision to quit the night training sessions was made because Heeney likes to pile into bed early. Boxing at night kept him up until nearly midnight. As a result he did not get his required amount of sleep.

"Personally, I like to work out at night, with a cool breeze sweeping the ring, but I have to get to bed earlier," the barrel chested New Zealander said. "Working at night forced me to change my eating hours, was obliged to eat late, with the result that I appeared to be sluggish in the ring."

Heeney weighs about 203 pounds at present. Starting tomorrow he intends gradually to reduce six or eight pounds, so he will enter the ring weighing about 196 pounds.

Heeney received a new batch of messages from his native land, New Zealand, all of them wishing him success. W. G. Coates, prime minister of New Zealand, sent the following from Wellington: "New Zealand congratulates you upon your success and cordially wishes you good luck in your forthcoming contest."

GENE WOULD FLY

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 17.—(INS.)—Upon the arrival of Commander Richard E. Byrd and a party of friends in an airplane here today, Gene Tunney will ask the famous flier to take him to New York in his plane on July 26, the day of the heavyweight champion's match with Tom Heeney. If this cannot be arranged, Tunney intends to leave here the day before the bout.

Gene announced he would box today, tomorrow and Thursday, lay off on Friday and work Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Next Tuesday and Wednesday he intends to get in some roadwork and light exercises to keep on edge.

The champion's only work yesterday consisted of nine miles on the road. He spent the remainder of the day in seclusion in his wooded retreat.

Gene Hopes For Kayo

By GENE TUNNEY,
Heavyweight Champion of the World.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., July 17.—Boxing writers and many of my friends are asking me frequently these days just how I plan to box Tom Heeney in the Yankee Stadium a week from Thursday night.

Every time I enter the ring, my plan of campaign is mapped out. I have not gone so far as to figure on certain punches in certain places and definite procedure at points along the way. But always I have mapped out the style I feel will best counteract the most potent weapons of my opponent and lead him to play my game.

Heeney is a rushing, short-punching slugger who works best in close. At long range my greater reach will handicap him. I realize that as he plans his attack he is thinking of getting inside my left hand, playing to the body with his short smashes, crossing to the head when the openings offer.

That style has made me train in two ways: first, to keep Heeney from getting to close quarters as much as possible; second, to handle him and outfight him, if possible, at his own game when he does get in close.

Naturally, I realize that there must be times when, despite my best efforts, the New Zealander will work inside my guard. His shorter stature will help him there. He will be a more difficult boxer to tie up in clinches because of his comparatively short body. The strength of Tom's arms and shoulders is tremendous.

Inside, I shall meet him at his own game, depending mostly on sweeping hooks to the body to make Tom hold himself. I have no fear in matching strength with the Anzac. Dempsey never was able to twist me around or overpower me in a clinch. I never expect to be called upon to face a stronger man than Jack Dempsey.

At long distance, Heeney will have to do the worrying, not I. To bring into action his strongest weapons, Tom must break through my left hand. To keep him from getting in close, I must depend a great deal on that same hand. The result will be a constant attempt on my part to jab Heeney off balance, jar him into halting for a moment with my left.

Constant jarring with the left hand should shake the challenger constantly, and the right crosses should slow him considerably as the fight goes on. When the time is right, the moment I feel Heeney weaken, I intend to throw caution to the winds and slug—and show the fans that my right hand carries a knockout wallop.

GROVE CITY, Pa., July 17.—John Emery, baseball star of other years and a member of the famous Grove City Athletics, which represented this city some years ago, will be honored by local players and fans this evening when a benefit game will be played on the College Athletic Field between the Grove City Independents and the Leesburg All-Stars. The entire proceeds of the game will go to Emery, who has been in ill health for six months.

BRUGNON

opinions and emotions in French tennis circles.

Jean Borotra, who was Brugnon's doubles partner against the Americans in the United States last year, disagreed so heartily with the Davis cup strategists' announced purpose of shelving Brugnon that he threatened a sympathetic strike. This gave rise to a possibility that the burden of defending the cup might fall on Rene Lacoste and Henri Cochet in doubles as well as singles.

TOO WEAK, CLAIM

The reasons given for omitting the experienced Brugnon from this year's plan of battle were that he is somewhat weak overhead and is not strong enough physically to bear up well under the weight of a gruelling five-set match.

With Brugnon out of the running, other doubles combinations have been tried with so little success that French tennis officials are in a quandary. The viewpoints of these dignitaries—recruited from the two most prominent rival clubs of Paris—are so far apart that amicable agreement before the Davis cup challenge round 10 days hence seems almost impossible.

Grattan Bars Favored in Race Derby

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 17.—(AP.)—The Canadian stallion, Grattan Bars, was established an overwhelming favorite to win the $25,000 American pacing derby here today, the premier events of the harness racing world.

The coal black pacer from the stable of Fred Thrower, of Kerwood, Ont., has been unbeaten this year and the remarkable record has tended to offset the local track laws, that a favorite never wins the derby. Vic Kleming, veteran reinsman, will pilot the Canadian horse.

DOEG OPPOSES HILL IN BROOKLINE TENNIS

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 17.—(INS.)—John Doeg, of Santa Monica, Cal., defending his singles title in the Longwood Bowl championship tennis play, was pitted against Malcolm T. Hill, the Harvard lad, this afternoon in the third round. W. Barry Wood, Jr., Massachusetts junior champion, caused somewhat of an upset in the second round by defeating Berkley Bell, of the University of Texas, 7-5, 6-2. John Van Ryn, Princeton University; Doeg, William Allison of Texas, Herbert Bowman of New York, Fritz Mercur of Bethlehem, Penn., Frank Shields of New York and Ben Gorchakoff of California won first and second round matches.

to an 8-3 victory over the Braves in running up their seventh unbroken success. Up to the ninth inning the Tribe made only one run and six hits off Kremer, and the tally was unearned. In the ninth Frenchy yielded a bit when the visitors collected two tallies. All the while Remy had a commanding lead.

Arthur Delaney, also a Pacific Coast star, hardly deserved the defeat that was charged against him. All four of the runs made while Delaney pitched were tainted. Arthur stepped aside for a pinch hitter in the fifth and Ben Cantwell finished the game.

Boots Grantham and Paul Waner were the stars of the Pittsburgh attack, with seven hits between them, as well as a pair of passes issued to Brother Paul. Boots collected four blows, including a triple and a double. Paul's perfect batting average was featured by a ipie and two singles.

RUTH'S AVERAGE FALLS, HOMER TOTAL MOUNTS

NEW YORK, July 17.—(INS.)—Although Babe Ruth's batting average has slumped to .311, he is crashing his way to a new home run record. It's "home run or no count" with the Bam.

Ruth's thirty-fifth homer of the current campaign, made against Cleveland yesterday, put him 22 games, 20 days and five home runs ahead of his 1927 record.

Harry Keck, sporting editor of The Sun-Telegraph, also will be on hand to give a word of advice and good cheer to the 11 boys out of an entry of almost 700, who were fortunate and skillful enough to win prizes.

While the prizes and places for second, third and fourth in the Junior Class will not be decided until Mike Gula plays his round, accompanied by the golf tournament editor himself, today or tomorrow, the following Junior class golfers were to be present: Joe Curto, champion; Norman Gaylord, of Erie; John Slocum, Mike Gula, Mike Baysura and Howard Brumbach, who wins the consolation prize by virtue of his 123 score.

Steve Slivika, who carried off the top honor in the Sub-Junior class when he scored a 70—just two strokes above Curto—will be presented his gold medal and golf club. Other sub-juniors who will attend are Tom McDonough, who won second place in a playoff yesterday; James Scajbarretti third; Mike Bakos, fourth, and Hull Wilson, who scored 234 for the consolation prize in his class.

A special prize will be presented Arthur Weltner. That 13-year-old lad, who scored a hole in one on the twelfth, will be given a gold medal for his prowess.

The dinner will get under way promptly at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, and attending, other than those already mentioned, will be John Jay Burke, executive committeeman of the public links section, United States Golf Association; Al McBride, Schenley Park golf pro; William Earl Super, assistant professional; Chuck Onoratta, assistant professional; Eddie Kunold, superintendent of the clubhouse; Andy Petrolia, caddiemaster; Tommy O'Keefe, time clerk; Frank Petrolia, restauranteur; Miss E. Lucille Bejach, who aided in putting the tourney across, and members of The Sun-Telegraph's sporting staff.

In the Sub-Junior Class, by the way, Tom McDonough will be presented a gold medal and an iron club; James Scajbarretti will get a silver medal and a golf club; Mike Bakos will be presented a silver medal, and so will Hull Wilson.

The winner of second place in the Junior Class will get a gold medal and a mid-iron; third place, a silver medal and a golf club, and fourth place, a silver medal. Howard Brubach also gets a silver medal as a consolation prize.

T. E. Karamanos, maitre d'hotel at the Fort Pitt, is arranging a special dinner for the boys—and you can bet on it, it will be some feed!

PERHAPS you wonder why the oil that you used in the old car doesn't work so well in the new motor. The answer is, automobile designing tends toward faster, higher compression motors and lighter cars. Many oils break-down under this increased heat and friction. The lubricant of today has a real job. Most oils are out of date.

For safety and real motor performance try Waverly. It has an extra margin of stamina which is way beyond the increased heat and friction of the new motors. It's the "longest wearing" lubrication you can buy and that means slower depreciation . . . . lower repair bills . . . . greater ENDURANCE for your car. Profits Lie in Personnel; Says "Make Millionaires"

By B. C. FORBES

FRANK W. WOOLWORTH, explaining how he founded and built up the now-famous chain of stores, told me that he learned two things which greatly helped him to grow. The first was the importance of making the manager of each new store a partner of that store. The second, which cost him a six-weeks' complete break-down to discover, was that he must not attempt to do everything himself, but must learn to deputize responsibilities.

Now comes another big merchant with ideas which have proved successful. Other employes may obtain helpful pointers from them.

THIS man believes in making employes millionaires!

"I should not be surprised," he declared, "if the day were nearly passed when the building of a successful business meant the founding of a huge fortune for one man and only one.

"We are in an era when some of the most highly successful organizations are those that make many well-to-do or rich, and afford many the opportunity for positions of some power and prominence. Organizations that are recognizing this fact and are hewing to it as a central policy are, I notice, already growing at a rate almost past belief.

"Indeed, I may go so far as to say that I regard it as a pleasant obligation, and also as the soundest business policy, to be constantly creating conditions such that any man with the necessary capacity, can advance to millionairedom within the organization quite as readily as if he were in business for himself alone—if not, perhaps more readily."

THAT statement comes from Charles R. Walgreen, founder of the Walgreen drug stores, of which no fewer than 70 were opened last year alone, according to the Chain Store Review. Mr. Walgreen has learned from experience not to engage low-salaried employes. The minimum for each pharmacist—and each man, except at the soda fountain, must be a pharmacist—is $50 a week. He has discovered, too, that most of his store managers are more skilled at that job than he, himself, ever was—and he admits it. On the subject of giving men the right incentive, Mr. Walgreen says:

"The salesman, over and above his minimum salary, has an immediate opportunity to earn 'P. M.'s' and bonuses. The store manager and his assistant share directly in the profits of the store. Every man has some special money incentive, including occasional unannounced bonuses for good work off the routine track.

"WE encourage stock ownership, also, if a man is thrifty and cares to invest and share in profits in that way. Some indication of what this may amount to for individuals in the course of time was shown recently.

"We were putting our stock on the exchanges and found it necessary to ask each stockholder to surrender 7 per cent of his holdings of common stock. Up to that time, some of the men had not quite figured how much they were really worth, as a result of their earlier investments and the growth of this business. The check which one man received for 7 per cent of his stock was $102,000, making him well past a millionaire; another man, who is still a store manager, received a check for $68,000. There were many others. One man, for example, who had been with the company about four years and is manager of the soda fountain in one of the stores—a position subordinate to that of store manager—received $24,000. Indicating that the total value of his holdings was well over a third of a million dollars."

MR. WALGREEN is always on the lookout for what he calls a "money maker." He confesses that he himself for years was not a "money maker." Being a money maker, experience and observation have taught him, "is not a question of being stingy; but as often as not it is the exact opposite." He has had store managers so tight-fisted that they overreached the mark. What is a money maker? This:

"Essentially, a money maker is one who has acquired the habit of feeling that he must get his money's worth. The question is not whether the deal involves dimes or millions; if it is a transaction having to do with outgo and income, he feels keenly and constantly that he must get his tithe of profit. In short, it's a way of looking at things."

HOW to give men the greatest incentive consistent with the well-being of a business has become among the most vital problems confronting business men today. Admittedly profits lie in personnel. The foregoing should prove suggestive.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Market Turns Upward.

The market hung fire until around midday, when a rally in Radio changed the color of the trading and started many of the speculative favorites, as well as some of the standard industrials, upward. Atlantic Refining, General Motors, American Can, Kroger Grocery, Motor Products and numerous others joined the procession and turned the morning's dull market into one of considerable spirit. Traders jumped on their pet stocks for a quick turn and there was a pronounced feeling of relief that the list finally showed some definite tendency after the insipid movements of late yesterday and the forenoon today. Money conditions were easier in the call loan market. Renewal rate on demand accommodation was 6 per cent, and there was plenty of funds available at that figure, indicating lower rates later. The Street took kindly to the raise in heavy steel prices by Carnegie Steel and there was much favorable comment on the showings of several of the automobile companies and a few of the oils. Steadily declining earnings have been the lot of the latter industry for two years, and the fact that some of them are showing upward profits in their latest reports has greatly encouraged the traders who usually follow that group.

$9 on GMO For Half-year.

The General Motors Corporation report for the quarter ended June 30 will show net income of approximately $90,000,000, or slightly in excess of $5 a share on 17,400,000 common shares ($25 par), after senior dividends, according to financial interests close to the company. This added to $69,468,570, or $3.68 a share reported for the first quarter, will bring first six months to over $160,000,000, or close to $9 on the common. In the first half of 1927 profit totaled $129,250,207, or $14.35 on 8,700,000 no par common shares then outstanding and which has since been split on a two-for-one basis for the present par common. On present capital, these earnings are equal to $7.18 a share, indicating this year's results were about 25 per cent ahead of 1927.

Extra Not Likely Now.

Considerable interest is manifest in the meeting of General Motors Corporation board in the second week in August. The directors have informally discussed another split-up of the common on a two-for-one basis. Whether this will come up for serious consideration depends largely on the selling price of the stock then. It is reported to be the consensus of directorate that a split-up should be effected only in the event the selling price of the stock reaches levels at which it is not a popular trading issue. There is little likelihood that consideration will be given a cash extra at the meeting next month. The board undoubtedly will follow its previous policy of waiting until the November meeting to get a better idea of the last half and then vote an extra, based upon earnings then in sight.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, July 17.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 1 to 12 points, which was only a partial response to the cables, as there was some buying on reports of rains in Mississippi, and covering in belief that the recent break had strengthened the technical position.

Prices worked up a few points, but the advance to 21.34c for October met increased offerings, and the market soon eased off under a renewal of liquidation. There also seemed to be considerable selling here for Liverpool account. October declined to 21.15c, a net loss of 20 points, and the market was rather nervous and unsettled at the end of the first hour.

Private cables said Liverpool was weak under heavy selling and liquidation, but that the cloth demand from China was expanding.

Liquidation with the market under considerable pressure later in the morning. Tired longs and houses with both Liverpool and Continental connections were among the sellers. Trade buying and covering absorbed the contracts on a scale down, but the market remained nervous with the decline extending to 21.06c for October, or about 25 to 30 points net lower. Prices at midday were within a point or two of this level.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The raw sugar market was quiet with no sales reported. Refiners appeared interested at 4.14c for either Cuban or duty free sugars, but holders asked 4.18c to 4.21c.

The raw sugar futures market opened 1 to 2 points lower and following the call showed additional losses of 1 point, under continued liquidation and selling by houses with European connections prompted by the continued inactivity of the spot market. Offerings were absorbed on these setbacks by shorts and houses with trade connections. A steadier tone developed later and the early loss was recovered with the market at midday about net unchanged. Trading was not active.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.75c to 5.80c for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts were fairly liberal. While some new business was reported it was mostly hand to mouth buying.

STOCKS GO UP AS PRESSURE EASES

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP.)—Selling pressure decreased in today's stock market and prices recovered moderately under the influence of favorable trade news and easier credit conditions. Early losses of 1 to 3 points were largely reduced, or wiped out, and in many cases converted into gains which ranged from 1 to 5 points in the active issues and 6 to 13 points in a few specialties. Trading continued relatively quiet.

Call money renewed at 6 per cent but the supply became so plentiful that the rate was shaded in the "outside market" to 5½ per cent, the official rate being cut to that figure in the early afternoon. There was no change in time money and commercial paper.

One of the most interesting trade developments of the day was the report that steel companies had advanced prices of bars, shapes and plates $2 a ton for fourth quarter delivery. The Otis Steel Company reported earnings of $1.66 a share in the first half of the year, as against 70 cents in the corresponding period last year.

Motor Products was the spectacular feature, soaring 13 points to a new high record at 115. Case Threshing Machine ran up 6 points, Dupont 5⅝, Radio 5, Burroughs Adding Machine 5 Atlantic Refining 4½ and Wright Aeronautical, Montgomery-Ward, Sears Roebuck, Greene Cananea Copper, Union Carbide and Kroger Stores 2 to 4 points.

City Stores broke 4 points on a renewal of selling pressure against that stock and heaviness was quite pronounced in American Water Works, Commercial Solvents and Eastman Kodak.

The Value of a Good Name

A GOOD name is man's most precious possession. And the same is true for any honorable business organization. Like the mark of "sterling" on silver, the very name of an organization oftentimes attracts to itself other well-known business connections, just as the individual is attracted to the highly-thought-of hotel, or wears the clothing of a distinguished maker.

So the name of a strong, reputable and long-established bank on your checks links your name or your business with that of your bank. You enjoy, to a certain degree, the prestige of that bank.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE phenomenal growth in the use of electric refrigeration has been reflected in rapid increases in the sales of the Suburban Electric Development Company, distributor for Frigidaire and Delco Light products in Western Pennsylvania.

It is the fourth largest sale outlet for the Frigidaire Corporation in the United States. Since its incorporation in 1917 it has grown from an organization with five employes to one with 160 workers.

GROSS sales last year totaled $2,570,131 compared with only $508,575 in 1924. Sales in each of the past three years have been about two-thirds greater than in the previous year. This rate of increase is continuing this year. In the first six months of 1928 gross sales amounted to $2,083,000, which was not far from the total for all of the previous year.

THE growth in electric refrigeration which is most noticeable to the general public has been in domestic equipment, but there has been a corresponding increase in commercial sales.

Over one-half of the business volume of the company is secured from commercial and industrial companies. Frigidaire cooling systems are used for the storage of furs, for ice cream cabinets and for cooling in many types of stores.

PROFITS have grown steadily with sales. Last year net profit of $141,000 was reported which was equivalent to $2.17 a share on the 65,000 shares outstanding.

The stock will be placed on a $1.50 annual dividend basis soon. Dividends for an entire year at this rate were more than earned in the first half of 1928. In this period net profit of $117,297 was reported before deducting Federal taxes, which was equivalent to $1.80 a share.

Application has been made to list the stock on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. Public participation in ownership will be secured through the sale of a block of 25,000 shares by K. W. Todd & Company.

THE Suburban Electric Development Company has no preferred stock and no funded debt with the exception of a mortgage of $267,500 on its building. Since the company acts solely as a distributor its fixed assets are confined to equipment, trucks and leases on show rooms. These, after charging off depreciation, were valued at $341,208 on June 30. The greater part of total assets of $1,393,345, after giving effect to the new financing, consisted of current items.

A good financial position was shown by the balance sheet. Current assets amounted to $985,672 against current liabilities of $326,135. A book value of $12.29 a share was indicated for the stock.

AN important angle to consider in the future development of air transportation here has been neglected by most other cities. The distance between Detroit and Cleveland is covered by planes flying on schedule in about 100 minutes. But that is not all of the journey. At each end of the trip it is necessary to travel for 20 minutes to half an hour in a cab or a bus to reach the business sections of the cities.

A GREAT time-saving means of travel has been developed which carries passengers at speeds ranging from 75 to 100 miles an hour. It seems ridiculous to impede such a form of transportation by locating air ports so far from the natural points of destination.

A motor ride of half an hour at the end of a journey is adding the equivalent in time of about 40 air miles to the trip. In traveling by rail to Pittsburgh it would seem just as foolish if the train left us at Butler and we finished the trip by canal boat.

OF course the high cost of real estate and the necessity for fields of large size make it prohibitive to establish air ports within the heart of a city. But Pittsburgh has several possible sites which are not at such distances from the Triangle that the time needed for an air journey would be doubled by the inaccessibility of the air port.

TRADE VOLUME SHOWS DROP

There was no noticeable changes in the price list on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in the early session today and volume of business continued on the restricted scale of the past week or so.

Initial quotations were at or near the levels prevailing on the close last night. Pittsburgh Plate Glass did not hold the price of 230 established yesterday and sold a fraction under that figure at the start of business today. Support accorded the issue when it dipped under 230 late last week was still in the market, however, but it appeared the buyers desired the advantages of the uncertain attitude of the outside traders.

The fuel stocks continued to hover around the price prevailing for the past several days. Arkansas Gas was handled in small amounts while Lone Star was traded in early a small fraction under 53, the average level of recent trading. A block of 100 shares Carnegie Metals appeared on the board at 18½ shortly after the opening, a decline of ¼ from the last previous price.

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered—I mean I'm so MAD I could SPIT, because the way ARab FRANtically grasps onto some exPRESsion and conTINually USes it SIMply SLAYS me, my dear, and at this point I'm SIMply LIVid because he keeps saying 'That makes me WILD' and, my dear, it anNOYS me because I find it both NAUseating and obNOXious in the exTREME! But I was ABs'lutely SEETHin with SPLEEN the other day, my dear, because I mean we were in SWIMming and it just SEEMS as if every time the TIDE sees ARab COMing it has to go OUT, for which you can hardly BLAME it, my dear, but ANYways when I reMARKED to him that it always seemed to be LOW TIDE when he and I went DIPping he said that made him WILD, my dear, and I mean he kept rePEATing that perVERted exPRESsion for HOURS in answer to EV'rything I SAID until in SELF-deFENCE, my dear, I REMonstrated with him HOTly, asking him why on EARTH he couldn't say ANYthing else, but just had to keep reVERberating that NAUseous reMARK, whereupon, not having a LEG to STAND on, my dear, he SUDdenly sat HEAVily on his STERN in the few INCHes of water reMAINing, as if to them from going OUT by SITting on them or something—can you BEAR it, my dear? But I mean I was SO STUpefied, sort of, that I ACtually found myself gasping 'THAT makes me WILD!' And I can't think of a THING that makes me WILDer, do you know what I mean?"

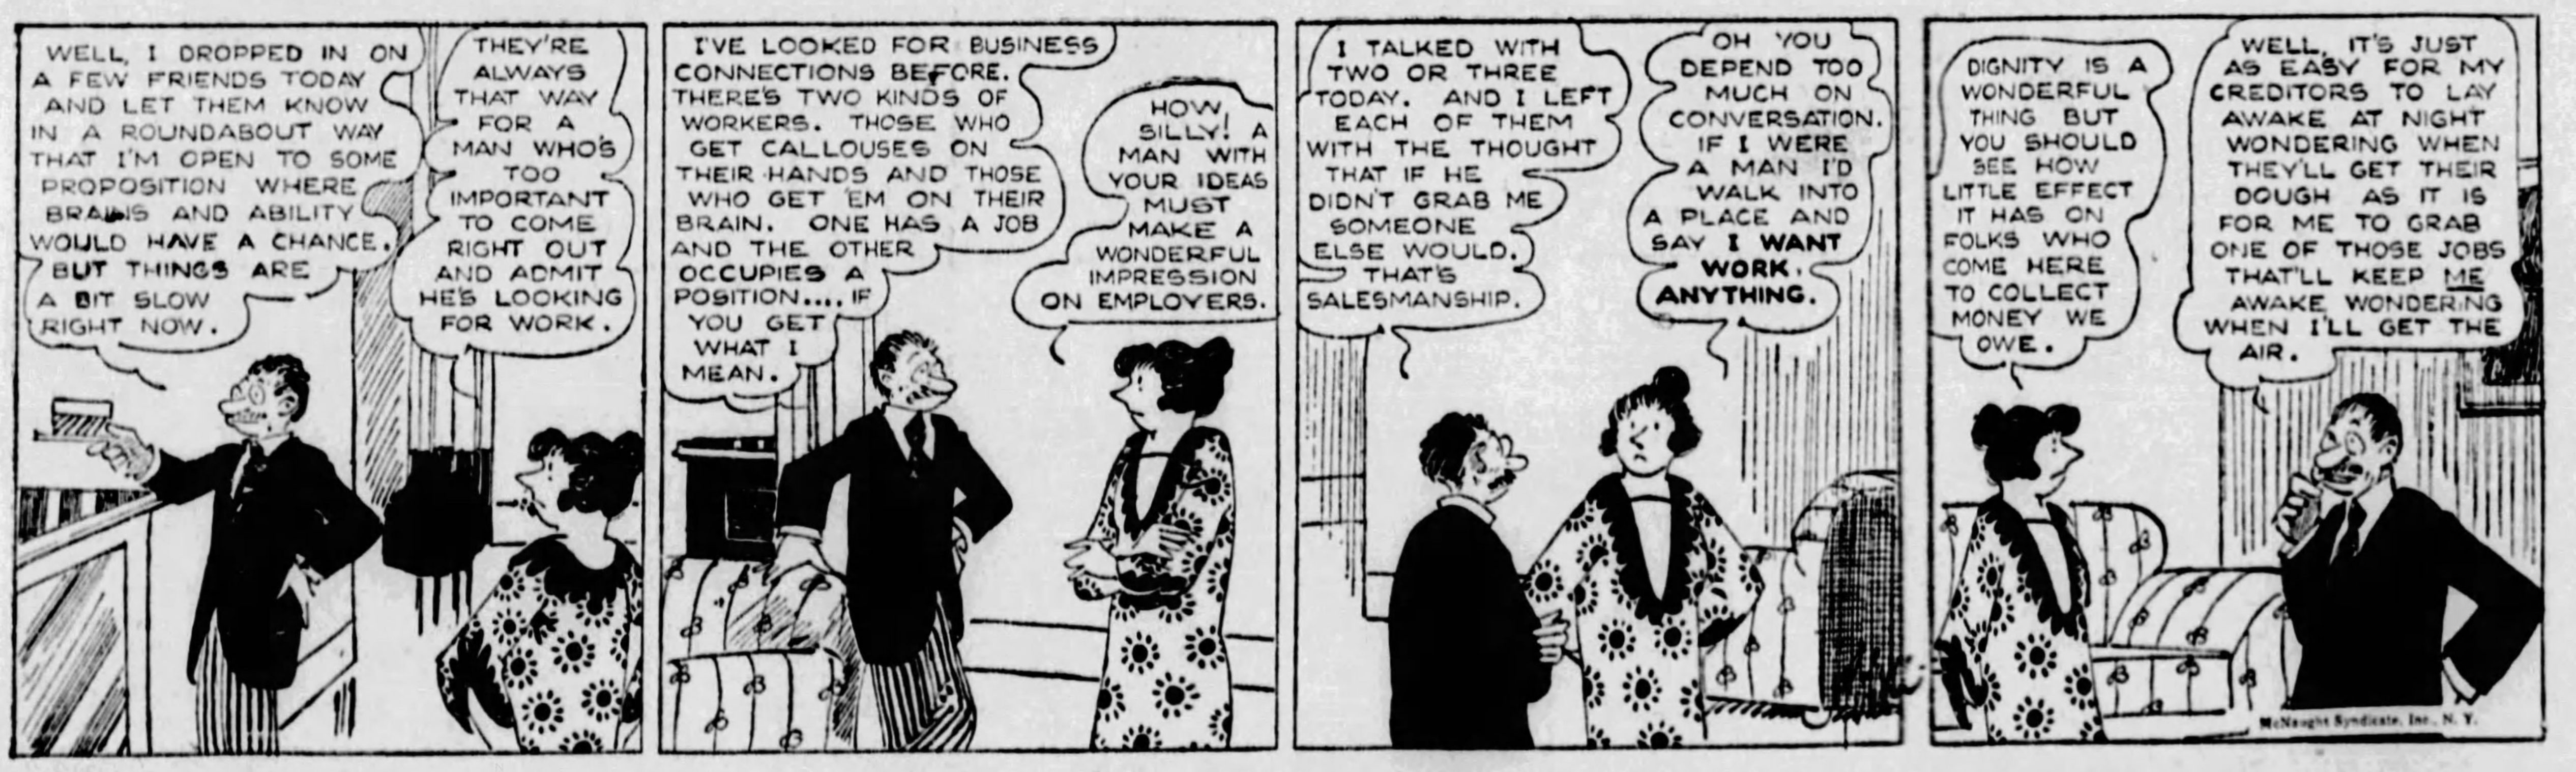
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Creditors: Take Notice



WELL, I DROPPED IN ON A FEW FRIENDS TODAY AND LET THEM KNOW IN A ROUNDABOUT WAY THAT I'M OPEN TO SOME PROPOSITION WHERE BRAINS AND ABILITY WOULD HAVE A CHANCE. BUT THINGS ARE A BIT SLOW RIGHT NOW.
THEY'RE ALWAYS THAT WAY FOR A MAN WHO'S TOO IMPORTANT TO COME RIGHT OUT AND ADMIT HE'S LOOKING FOR WORK.
I'VE LOOKED FOR BUSINESS CONNECTIONS BEFORE. THERE'S TWO KINDS OF WORKERS. THOSE WHO GET CALLOUSES ON THEIR HANDS AND THOSE WHO GET 'EM ON THEIR BRAIN. ONE HAS A JOB AND THE OTHER OCCUPIES A POSITION.... IF YOU GET WHAT I MEAN.
HOW SILLY! A MAN WITH YOUR IDEAS MUST MAKE A WONDERFUL IMPRESSION ON EMPLOYERS.
I TALKED WITH TWO OR THREE TODAY. AND I LEFT EACH OF THEM WITH THE THOUGHT THAT IF HE DIDN'T GRAB ME SOMEONE ELSE WOULD. THAT'S SALESMANSHIP.
OH YOU DEPEND TOO MUCH ON CONVERSATION. IF I WERE A MAN I'D WALK INTO A PLACE AND SAY I WANT WORK. ANYTHING.
DIGNITY IS A WONDERFUL THING BUT YOU SHOULD SEE HOW LITTLE EFFECT IT HAS ON FOLKS WHO COME HERE TO COLLECT MONEY WE OWE.
WELL, IT'S JUST AS EASY FOR MY CREDITORS TO LAY AWAKE AT NIGHT WONDERING WHEN THEY'LL GET THEIR DOUGH AS IT IS FOR ME TO GRAB ONE OF THOSE JOBS THAT'LL KEEP ME AWAKE WONDERING WHEN I'LL GET THE AIR.

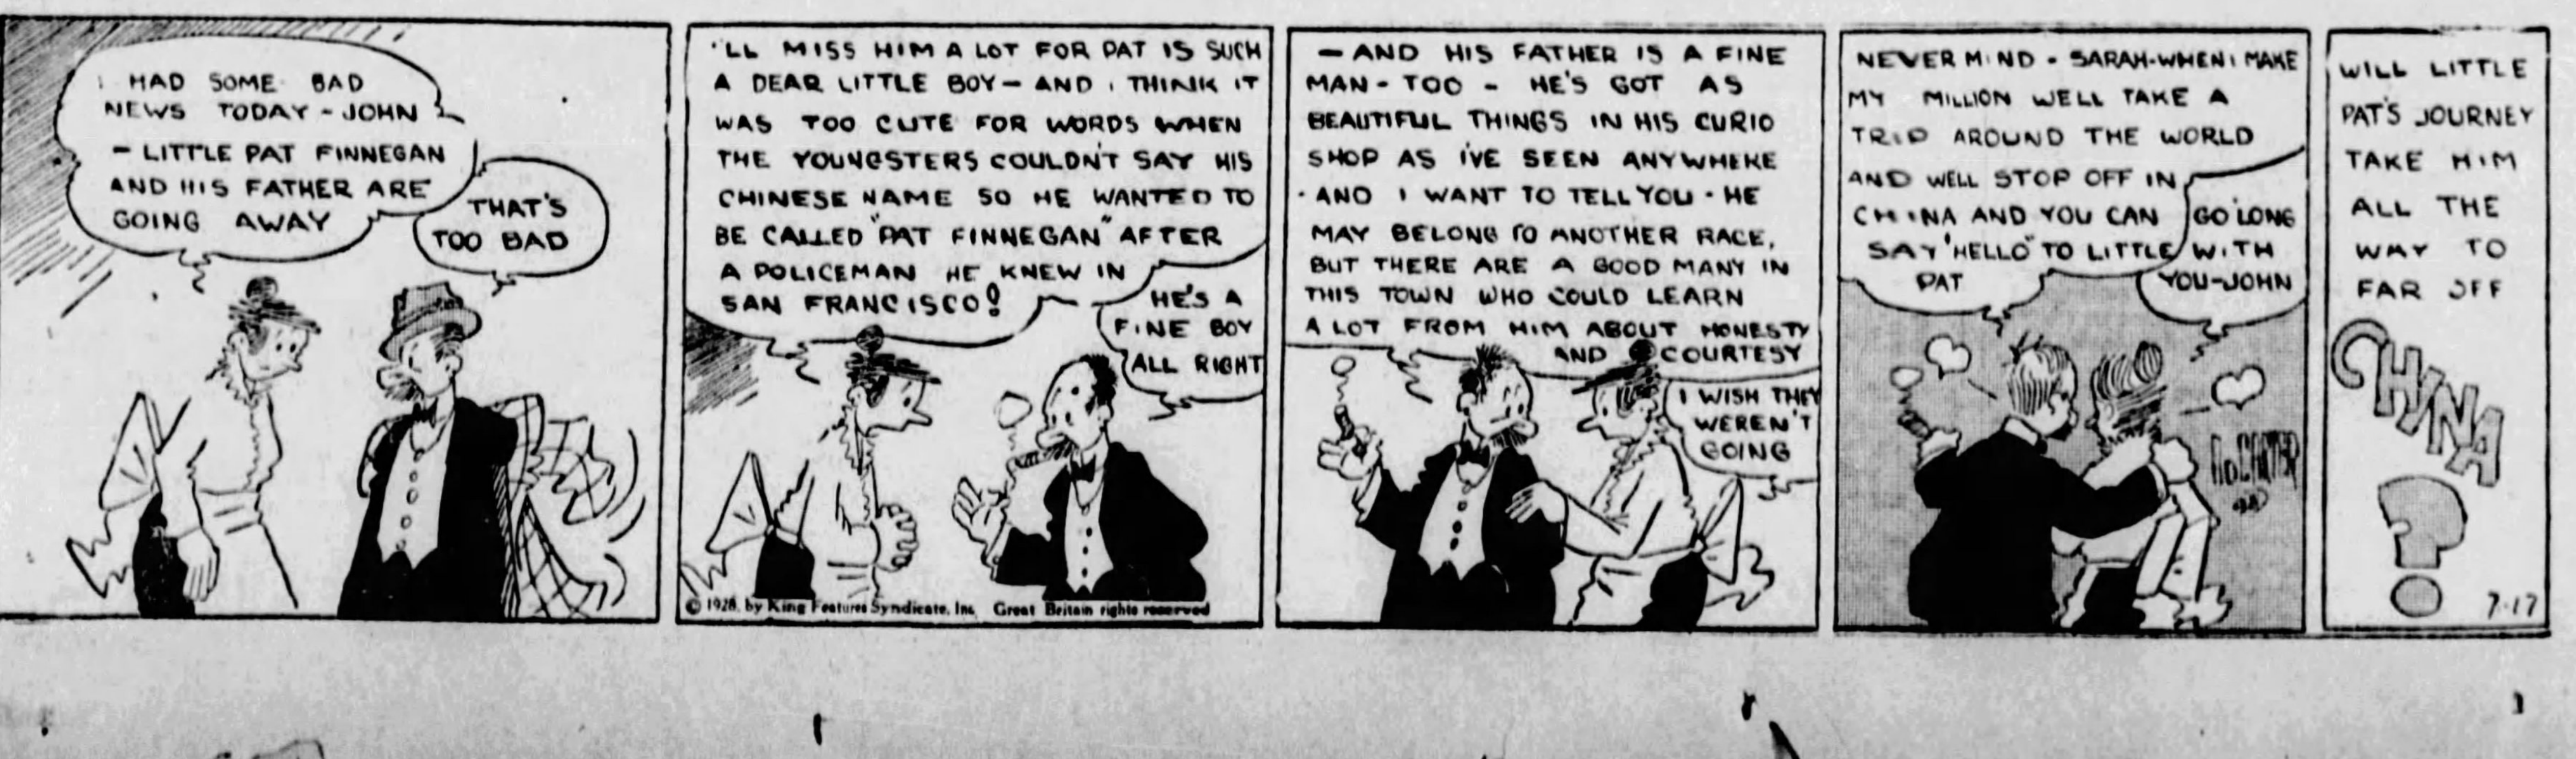
JUST KIDS

Dream Travels



I HAD SOME BAD NEWS TODAY - JOHN - LITTLE PAT FINNEGAN AND HIS FATHER ARE GOING AWAY
THAT'S TOO BAD
I'LL MISS HIM A LOT FOR PAT IS SUCH A DEAR LITTLE BOY — AND I THINK IT WAS TOO CUTE FOR WORDS WHEN THE YOUNGSTERS COULDN'T SAY HIS CHINESE NAME SO HE WANTED TO BE CALLED "PAT FINNEGAN" AFTER A POLICEMAN HE KNEW IN SAN FRANCISCO!
HE'S A FINE BOY ALL RIGHT
—AND HIS FATHER IS A FINE MAN - TOO - HE'S GOT AS BEAUTIFUL THINGS IN HIS CURIO SHOP AS I'VE SEEN ANYWHERE - AND I WANT TO TELL YOU - HE MAY BELONG TO ANOTHER RACE, BUT THERE ARE A GOOD MANY IN THIS TOWN WHO COULD LEARN A LOT FROM HIM ABOUT HONESTY AND COURTESY
I WISH THEY WEREN'T GOING

Mt. Washington Roadway Another Big Improvement

The completion of another important municipal project is marked today in the dedication and opening of the Mt. Washington roadway, providing a more direct route to Mt. Washington and Duquesne Heights. An elaborate program, including a parade and winding up with a banquet and speeches, attests the enthusiasm of residents of the districts affected by the improvement. For years restricted to a roundabout way of entering the city proper as an alternative of using the inclines, folks of that part of the town properly welcome the shorter, time-saving road with manifestations of great approval.

The new roadway represents years of effort on the part of residents of Mt. Washington, which, only a few minutes distant from the heart of the city, nevertheless has been more isolated than places more remote. Development has not gone forward as rapidly there as in more distant suburbs, and lack of speedier means of access no doubt has been a factor. Now all this is happily past and Mt. Washington looks for advancement at the normal rate of the rest of the city.

The new roadway is a credit to the city as a civic asset and it will be a scenic feature equally as attractive as the Bigelow boulevard, along the bluff of the Allegheny. As an engineering achievement the new road is conspicuous, the sheer side of the cliff being of a nature to present many difficulties. With its bridge and other features, it also has an esthetic appeal. Other contemplated improvements to the rear of the bluff will serve to make it a short cut to the South and West eventually.

Mt. Washington is to be congratulated on the completion of its new road. So are the city and county.

The Wind Does Not Rule Your Destiny

Use the Force Within Yourself to Steer a Safe Course.

> "There be three things which are too wonderful for me; yea, four which I know not:
> "The way of an eagle in the air; the way of a serpent on a rock; the way of a ship in the midst of the sea, and the way of a man with a maid."

At sunset a long train of cars waited on a bridge as a sailing ship sailed through the draw.

The ship sailed up the river toward the cold WINTER sun; another ship passed it going in the opposite direction.

Only ONE wind was blowing. Yet, of those two ships blown by the same wind, moved by the same power, one sailed EAST and one WEST.

It may be of use to you in your career to think for a few minutes about these two ships and the lesson which they teach —especially to young men.

The man who has sailed, in his life's journey, toward failure and disaster, looks always with envy, sometimes with hatred, and very often with an intense sensation of injustice, at the man who passes him going exactly in the opposite direction.

Yet the FORCES that move men bound toward success are exactly the same as those that move other men to failure, humiliation and defeat.

It is all a question of the way in which you use the forces within you—just as on shipboard it is all a question of the use of the common wind which blows.

IT IS A QUESTION OF THE USE OF THE RUDDER.

Two ships pass, each with its sails filled out by the same wind. The difference in direction is accounted for by the handling of the rudder and the adjustment of the sails.

What the force of the wind is to the ship, our varying emotions, passions, ambitions, appetites and aspirations are to us. All of these constitute the power which may be called HUMAN FORCE.

This power differs in different individuals, as the wind differs on different days. It may blow from the east or the west or the north or the south. However it may blow, it can be forced by proper steering to send the ship in any direction desired.

It is harder to beat against the wind, of course, and many men have hard struggles to steer themselves to a good port in the face of an adverse start, a hard beginning, or inclinations hard to overcome.

But in all of us the force exists which can be made to move us in the right direction—the force within us can be MADE to obey our will, if the will be strong and the hand on the rudder steady. This can be proved. For instance:

There is a certain force in human beings called LOVE. This force leads sometimes, and happily it leads usually, to domesticity, morality, care of children and lifelong devotion. Then the force is used properly.

The same human passion leads to murder, suicide, theft, to almost all forms of crime.

There is another human passion called AMBITION.

This human force of ambition, with a Lincoln's conscience [illegible]de it, saves a republic.

The same force guided by Benedict Arnold seeks to be[illegible] [illegible]he nation.

Consider yourself a ship launched on the sea of life under certain conditions—but with the essential conditions in your control.

The wind may be feeble, you may drift for a while or move very slowly—move at least in the right direction.

The wind may blow a gale, and you may feel, as so many do, that you cannot control your emotions and your appetites.

But, if that comes, show at least as much interest in yourself as a sailor does in his ship. Take in sail and fight the storm, instead of going willingly to destruction.

Four things puzzled and impressed the wise man that [illegible] the nineteenth verse of the thirtieth chapter of Proverbs. Think today about the third of these things:

"The way of a ship in the midst of the sea."

The way of a human being in the midst of life is like that of a ship on the ocean.

Make up your mind that your own way at least shall be controlled by the rudder of conscience, and learn from the passing ships a lesson of use in your own life.

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

Earth and Pendulum

"In proving the rotation of the earth with a pendulum I find it a simple matter to visualize the operation at either pole, but when the field of action is carried toward the equator the matter becomes very thick. On the equator, would it work around a complete circle? It seems to me that, because the point of suspension is in advance of the bob most of the time, when an east-west motion was attained it would be retained. If this is so, results would depend on whether the initial swing was north-south or east-west.—H. J. D., Troy, N. Y."

THE result does not depend upon the initial swing. There is no shifting of the plane of vibration of the pendulum on the equator, no matter in what direction it is started. But anywhere else on the earth the plane of vibration will appear to shift in consequence of the "skewing around" of the earth's meridians, produced by the fact that the equatorward end of any north-south line on the globe, situated anywhere between pole and equator, is carried around at a greater linear speed by the earth's rotation than the poleward end.

Or, as stated by Prof. Young, "the northern edge of the floor of a room (in the northern hemisphere) is nearer the axis of the earth than its southern edge, and therefore is carried more slowly eastward by the earth's rotation. Hence, it must skew around continually, like a postage stamp gummed upon a whirling globe, anywhere except at the globe's equator. The southern extremity of every north-and-south line on the floor continually works eastward faster than the northern extremity, causing the line itself to shift its direction accordingly, compared with the direction it had a few minutes before. A free pendulum set at first to swing along such a line must therefore deviate continually at the same rate in the opposite direction. In the northern hemisphere the plane moves with the hands of a watch, in the southern hemisphere it moves against the hands of the watch"

This is the principle on which Foucault constructed his pendulum 200 feet long, with an iron bob a foot in diameter, and swung it under the dome of the Pantheon in Paris, setting all Europe agog by thus rendering the rotation of the earth visible. A smaller pendulum of the same kind now swings in the National Academy of Sciences at Washington, to the confusion of all "earth-flatteners."

Prof. Young's illustration of the postage stamp may need an appendix. First stick the stamp on the equator of a school globe, with Washington's head pointing north along a meridian, and imagine a pendulum vibrating over the samp in the same direction. Then rotate the globe, and, although the pendulum is carried all around the axis, its plane of vibration remains north-south, parallel with its original direction.

Next paste it over the pole. Now, as the globe rotates, the postage stamp will turn under the pendulum, and the plane of the latter's vibration will shift around in the opposite direction, making a complete circuit in a single rotation of the globe.

Finally, place it an any point between pole and equator, and then you will see that the direction of swing of the pendulum still shifts around, but more slowly than at the pole. At either pole the shift amounts to one turn in 24 hours, or 15 degrees per hour. Between pole and equator the hourly shift equals 15 degrees multiplied by the sine of the latitude. At Paris the plane makes a turn once in 32 hours; at New York once in 36 hours; at Washington once in about 38 1-3 hours.

The Girls Step Out

THE chorus girl's life has frequently been referred to as romantic. Long ago the girls discovered that it was just as romantic as any other business, no more and no less; but on the whole not so well paid as most. So now the girls are about to organize, with the idea of squaring theory with fact.

One has but to watch the process of training a chorus to realize that skill, endurance and experience are all needed for the girl's job. Thoughts of the bright lights may lure her into it; but after she has been in it a little while she takes it seriously, and wants to be taken seriously.

Organization for better hours and better conditions is only ordinary common sense for her, and crediting chorus girls, as we do, with on the whole rather more than ordinary common sense, we are only surprised that organization should not have come sooner.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Don't Expect Too Much

YOU should not be surprised if the people whom you meet during your summer vacation pay little attention to you after the return to town.

Summer-made friends are not necessarily all-year friends.

There is a great difference between the association which summer brings and that which winter suggests.

Persons who might seem very friendly at the summer resort often would not consider entertaining you in their homes.

In summer people are looking for amusement.

There is a closer degree of friendship for those one entertains at home.

You may be merely an item on the program of summer diversion, of such a light nature that it brings no responsibilities and no social indebtedness.

Going to a summer resort for the purpose of becoming friendly with those whom you could not approach otherwise does not amount to much.

Like all fair-weather friends, summer ones are fluff, as a rule.

If you understand them as such you may get a lot of fun out of new faces, new forms of speech, new ideas expressed differently.

But don't be disappointed if they prove surface contact.

For this is usually the result.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

I RECKON it's true that not half enough Americans appreciate their own country for vacations, and still there is a lot of them that goes to the national parks every year. There was a crowd out in Yosemite or Yellowstone or some place this summer that left a story behind them. The two men was great eaters and drinkers, and they didn't pay much attention to anything but the grub and liquor. The two women was all hepped up about the scenery.

One day the party stopped and had a big meal right beside a canyon. Next day the women was talking about the trip so far.

"Well," says one of them, "I think that was the most wonderful gorge yesterday!"

"Yes," puts in one of the men, "I guess you're right. That steak wasn't bad, and the liquor was all right. And still, somehow, I'm all ready for another big gorge at noon today!"

Used to It

STAYING at the hotel were a number of foolish young men who thought they had found a good target for their humor in a rather simple clergyman.

Day in and day out, at the table and in the lounge, he received their jests with indifference.

"I wonder you stand those youngsters so well," said an older man, after a particularly foolish joke at the dinner table. "Don't you hear what they say?"

The clergyman smiled gently.

"Oh, yes," he answered; "but then, you see, I am chaplain at a mental home, so I'm used to this sort of thing!"

Then She Knew

AUNT AGATHA had called on the Sandes for the first time since becoming engaged.

Noticing little Leslie Sandes staring at her in a fixed kind of way, she asked the boy why he was so interested.

"I'm waiting to hear you click, auntie," was the astounding answer.

"Click," echoed his aunt. "What ever do you mean?"

"Well," continued her nephew. "When daddie heard that you were engaged and going to get married he said, 'Ye gods, the old girl's clicked at last!'"

An Odd Number

BERT: "Think of a number, and I'll tell you whether it is odd or even."

Albert: "All right. I just called my girl on the 'phone. Which number was it?"

"Did you get her?"

"Yes."

"Right away?"

"Yes."

"That's odd."

Advice Not Wanted

A SCOT consulted a London doctor who instantly diagnosed the trouble. He said, in effect: "Well, you must knock it off altogether. You understand? You must become a teetotaller and leave the drink alone." The Scot, ill-pleased, was walking to the door when the specialist said, "By the way, the fee for my advice is two guineas." "That's all right," said the Scot, "I'm no' takin' your advice."

Novelists' Children

THE flapper of today (or was she of just yesterday?) is blamed by a woman's club speaker on Bertha M. Clay and Laura Jean Libbey. Mothers, we gather, admired the heroines of those lady novelists, so sweet yet so willful, so feminine yet so successful; and that admiration, presumably, developed a natal influence.

On the same principle, the adventurous schoolboy of today is probably a reflection of the unconquerable lads of Nick Carter and Alger. Thus we see how literature determines social development. But if the view is correct, what a strange, morbid, unpleasant figure that girl and the boy of 1950 is going to be! Even Miss Clay, even Miss Libbey, must shudder in their graves.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 17.—While Tammany Hall is being devoured by the insatiable maw of the building wreckers, another famous landmark, hard by, becomes only a memory. The newspaper comment about its passing was slight.

The building is no longer known as Tony Pastor's theater, but as such was indelibly fixed in the minds of the last generation. Pastor's and Tammany Hall were joined in two places, though this was not apparent to the casual passerby.

The original Pastor's was on the Bowery, but it came uptown to Fourteenth street in 1875. No theatrical institution in the world turned out so many stars as Pastor's. Scores who began at Pastor's for their "coffee and cakes" went to shine effulgently in the Broadway heavens.

It flourished in the unregenerate day of "the hook," and a performer had to be good to remain a week. If he remained for two weeks, he could appear any place in America. The Pastor audience was devoted and regular, and few acts remained for more than two weeks.

Among the Pastor players were Fritz Williams, Sam Bernard, Lillian Russell, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Amelia Summerville—remember her in the Black Crook?—Vesta Tilley, Vesta Victoria, Louise Dempsey, Bessie Bonehill, Joe Weber, Lew Fields and Nat C. Goodwin.

Also Maggie Cline first sang "Throw Him Down, McClosky" at Pastor's. Francis Wilson, who became one of America's best and richest actors, used to do a refined song and dance at Pastor's. Dan Sully, Hugh Fay and Billy Barry were quandam entertainers, too.

Eddie Foy came out of the sticks to click at the music hall. Among others who received the Pastor applause were McIntyre and Heath, Jimmy Powers, Charlie Evans, Old Hoss Hoey, Billy Scanlon, Pat Rooney, Charles Ross and Mabel Fenton and George M. Cohan. A grand place was Pastor's.

A friend last evening was completely upset. He had just left three reastaurants in a half hour because they were out of dishes listed on their menus. And before I left him he blew me out of the water for some imaginary offense. But I know how he felt. Murders have been done for lesser causes.

Due to the lazy capers of a Mexican train from San Luis Potosi to the border I once went 14 hours without food. In the coach was a scrawny and puling Mexican child whose whimperings so annoyed me I childishly complained to the conductor. It happened to be his offspring, and with a snort of rage he pulled the bell rope to let me off the train. That helped me get over growing peevish when hungry. I'm all right now if one feeds me for days.

Men who swing big deals—and they are mostly swung at lunch in New York—rarely talk business until lunch is over. Experience has taught them about this. They know a hungry man is likely to be pouty and quibble over details. But with a well filled stomach he is inclined to be mellow and listen to reason.

Few realize the role appetite plays in our emotions. A noted actor can always appear at his best when his stomach is empty. He says he receives a stimulus over the prospect of a good meal at the finish of the play that spurs him to finest efforts.

A Western paragrapher refers to me as a "part time humorist." Those who have had a first-class look at me insist I am comic all the time.

Despite complaints, I do not think my face is such a trial. A writer in—just a second—Haldeman's Monthly some time ago touched upon my pulchritude in a personal way. You rather got the idea dogs barked, horses ran away and mothers hid their children when I passed by. Yet in St. Louis the other day a gentlemanly taxi driver mistook me for Rod La Rocque. Of course, he got a big tip, don't be ridic.

The Empty North

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the most striking passages of that ancient collection of literature known as the Bible, is "He hangeth the north over an empty place." It is found in the Book of Job.

The queer part of it is that astronomically the north is a somewhat empty place. In a measure you can see for yourself that there are not many stars in that direction.

All this is called to mind when we read of Gen. Nobile's flight over the Pole a short time ago. He discovered again what had already been discovered, that when you get to the North Pole you find nothing there—just frozen emptiness.

Think of all these years that men have dreamed of getting to the North Pole, and striven for it, and died for it. What does it amount to, after all?

It is simply a record to make, a sort of impossible line to toe, but all those fanciful dreams of Simms, Hole, and the like, about there being an undiscovered country up there, are pure fiction.

The only part of this globe that is habitable is the temperate zone, and in a measure the tropics.

The time will probably come in the future when the route across the North Pole will be found the most direct and the shortest for aircraft from Europe to America, but it is doubtful whether the polar regions can be made suitable for human habitation.

The first requisite for life of any kind, as we understand it, is heat, and in the polar regions it takes too much effort just to keep warm, although there seem to be plenty of fish in the way of diet.

Gen. Nobile's discoveries, as well as those of others, reveal that the north is to be added to the oceans and the deserts and the mountain ranges as pure waste. A deal of the universe, as far as we can see, is waste in the sense of not being habitable by man. We cannot live in the seas, and life is difficult in the high mountain ranges.

Considering how vast is the universe, and how many of the stars are simply blazing balls of fire utterly uninhabitable by any form of life, and how gigantic are the distances between the stellar bodies, and even what a great portion of this planet is not habitable, one's philosophy of life unconsciously limits the importance of mankind, and adds a new meaning to the exclamation:

"When I consider Thy heavens, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him, and the son of man that Thou visitest him?"

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

SENORA BERTA CUTTI is an Italian opera singer, and representative in America of the Italian Author's Society. She is a smart somebody, with any number of interesting ideas, one of which she wants to contribute to this column, for the benefit of women who are contemplating a trip to her country.

Senora Cutti boarded the Duilio, Italian liner, to go home. She carried a large scarf on her arm, with what seemed to be a rather large package underneath. She went at once to her cabin, and later came back on deck without the package.

Every now and then she told friends on board that she had to go and talk to Mussolini for a while. He was in her stateroom.

The travelers looked at each other and smiled. Trying to impress them, this clever woman, but she must be a bit balmy.

But when you say Mussolini you get an ear—especially on an Italian liner. Senora Cutti got several ears.

She took food to her cabin, saying it was for Mussolini, and the second day she appeared on deck leading a great Persian cat, yellow and tigerish, a glistening collar about his furry neck.

"Oh," said Capt. Ruspini, head of the navigazione generale, "I saw the animals in their pen, but I didn't see him."

"Of course, not," said Senora Cutti, "I couldn't put Mussolini in a pen with common, ordinary animals! the idea is repellant."

So Mussolini traveled in the cabin all the way across, the only cat that ever got away with it.

In Milan, at a villa where Senora visited, there were great iron gates, and when she saw inside a Belgian hound, "Darma" by name, and big enough to be a man-eater, she decided to go back to the city with Mussolini.

But the cat crawled through the iron grating, and met Darma, Senora calling wildly, "Mussolini, come here!"

It was enough. Darma began to lick the cat's ears.

But the night before Sonora left the villa, Mussolini, having become very sure of himself, went out for a rendezvous.

Now it so happened that this rendezvous took place in a great pipe that lay some distance from the villa. A dirty pipe withal, and when Mussolini came out he was no longer a yellow cat. He wore a black shirt, which was, probably the most fitting mistake in cat history.

He is now living with Senora Cutti in New York, comfortably domiciled, but it's tame there, after Italy.

Isn't It So?
